Homosexual Legality Approved

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons approved Monday night a bill legalizing homosexual acts between consenting male adults in private.

The action capped a long campaign by those who say the existing law makes practising homosexuals vulnerable to blackmail.

Leo Abe, Labor party member who sponsored the bill, said the law now offers homosexuals a choice of celibacy or criminality.

The bill now goes for debate in the House of Lords before becoming law. The Lords already have indicated they will pass it.

Opposition Leaps On 'Leak'

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Sharp's political career today hangs on the truth or falsity of hints of a budget "leak."

Conservative leader John Diefenbaker said Monday there must have been a leak and it had to be "looked into."

Mr. Sharp denied there was any substance to suggestions that he gave Jack Van Luven, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, or anybody else any hint of what was in the budget.

PREDICTION

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson said Mr. Pearson had an assurance from Mr. Sharp neither he nor Mr. Van Luven knew of any leak.

According to a news report from Vancouver Mr. Van Luven predicted, before Mr. Sharp started his mini-budget speech, that there would be a one per cent increase in the sales tax and the income tax.

In fact, there was a one per cent increase in the sales tax, and the old age security tax was also increased.

"COINCIDENCE"

A spokesman for Mr. Van Luven said Monday it was an "unfortunate coincidence" that he was 50 per cent correct.

According to the news reports, Mr. Van Luven was at a reception given by the Vancouver financial community last Wednesday.

Mr. Sharp was a guest, speaking mainly about the Mercantile Bank issue to between 50 and 75 people.

At a press conference, after he had delivered his mini-budget, Mr. Sharp said the report of a "leak" was completely false.

"Needless to say, I have never spoken to anyone, except

Santa-Scrooge Budget

PENSION-FUND TAX LEAPS

OTTAWA (CP)—The upper third of income taxpayers will pay up to $120 a year more and the federal sales tax will jump to 12 per cent from 11 to provide $290,000,000 for increased pension benefits. Finance Minister Sharp announced Monday in what amounts to a Santa-Scrooge budget.

Both steps take effect Jan. 1, 1967.

The additional taxes are being imposed to pay for the new guaranteed income plan which will provide $30 a month to old age pensioners who need it to supplement the $75 monthly now paid at age 69. Starting Jan. 1, the qualifying age drops to 68, adding 100,000 to the pension rolls.

The income guarantee plan is expected to increase old age security cost by $280,000,000 a year, $10,000,000 less than the projected yield of the two tax increases. Mr. Sharp said the measures are designed to meet cost of the supplement and to leave "a small margin."

MEET PENSIONS

Mr. Sharp said the two tax increases are all he now is imposing. Both are to meet the pension bill. The economy generally was in a delicate balance. It does not call for a more fundamental change in the basic tax structure.

The finance minister made no change in basic income tax exemptions, corporate taxes, the special tobacco and alcohol levies or import duties.

The higher tax takes the form of increasing to $240 a year the present $120-a-year maximum on the amounts taxpayers pay in the current four-per-cent old age security tax on incomes.

The increase affects all those who have taxable incomes of $3,000 or more, after all deductions and allowances now permitted by law.

LOW INCOMES BENEFIT

This means, says the finance department, there will be no tax increase for single persons with incomes of $4,100 or less, married persons earning $5,100 or less or a married man with one child earning $5,400 or less.

Married taxpayers with two dependent children qualified for family allowances will start to feel the pinch of the new tax at $5,700. Married taxpayers with four children qualified for family allowances will be hit at the $6,300 bracket.

WATCH TO GUARD

In the case of the increase in sales taxes, Mr. Sharp said the revenue department will watch to guard against charging the tax before Jan. 1.

Because foodstuffs, services and some other items such as fuel now are exempt from the sales tax, the one-percentage increase should mean less than a one-per-cent increase in living costs, Mr. Sharp said.

He also said that building materials and production machinery

Four Die, Many Flee Fiery Gasoline Flood

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Flaming gasoline pouring down a storm sewer after a massive four-death traffic crash Monday sent residents fleeing from their homes in a five-mile strip across northern Indianapolis. Eight schools were evacuated.

Civil defence authorities sounded the "all clear" shortly after noon but warned all returning householders to flush toilets to wash away any remaining gas fumes.

Indiana state fairgrounds buildings were being opened as an evacuation centre when the danger subsided, five hours after a fuel tank truck jackknifed on one of the city's busiest streets.

The tanker explosion and fire engulfed six vehicles. The driver was severely burned.

The semi-trailer truck jackknifed and two cars crashed into the truck which instantly exploded in a gush of flames, said eyewitness Ralph Smith, 19.

The billowing fire roared over the truck and five cars, burning so intensely that first fire companies at the scene were driven back and had to call for help.

SKIPPER CAST TWO AWAY

PIRAEUS, Greece (Reuters)—The captain of a West German freighter was convicted Monday of abandoning two slowaways—one of whom has never been found—on a raft in the Mediterranean.

Capt. Bernhard Stuve, 42, who said he had left the men at their own request, was sentenced to a year, but was freed after paying $1,500 in lieu of nine months in jail. He already has served three months since his arrest.

He was convicted of leaving unattended people at sea and facilitating the entry of slowaways into Greece.

Habib Daffe, 31, of Turkey, managed to reach Crete and accused the captain of putting him on the raft. A search failed to find the other slowaway, Agif Elghum, 18, of Lebanon.

Big Two Talk Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. is understood to be urging Russia to limit further deployment of anti-ballistic missiles to avoid a costly new spiral in the arms race that would not improve the strategic position of either country.

Administration sources said Monday the U.S. would not make a final decision on whether to start deployment of its own ABM system until January or February.

These sources said international discussions have begun on the perils posed by the Soviet entry into this field.

The Johnson administration had hoped to avoid involvement in another arms race with Russia.

But Defence Secretary McNamara disclosed Nov. 10 anti-missile missiles were going into position around Moscow and Leningrad. Congressional pressure for Nike-Xs around New York and Washington appeared immediately.

Thursday Last Chance to Help 500

The Colonist 500 Fund will close Thursday, Dec. 22, at 5 p.m.

This will enable Colonist staffers to divide receipts of the fund equally into 500 cheques to be sent before Christmas to the 500 families selected neediest in the Greater Victoria area by welfare agencies.

Here are examples of the kind of families the fund is aimed at helping to a little brighter Christmas:

Two of the area's Bettys have numerous things in common.

Each has an alcoholic husband who has left her with their four children.

Each is flat broke.

Betty No. 1, who lives in Sooke, brought up her four children "as best she could" on social assistance. But when her eldest child, a 17-year-old son, got himself what was considered an adequate job, her social assistance was cut off.

"There are still three children (ages 10, 12 and 14) in the house, but now Rod wants to go out and get married—and save his own money," Betty No. 1 complains.

Her house is a miserable little shack. All three younger children are in school. Among her "modern" conveniences are her water-pump faucet and kerosene lamps.

Betty No. 2 is a little different.

A Victoria woman, she does have a little money. At least she will have when the people for whom she has cleaned suites can find enough to pay her for her work.

Betty No. 2's children are 6, 4, 3, and 1½. She had to pay somebody to look after them when she got her month-long cleaning job, and she had to

Reg Clarkson, chairman of the city's Social Action Committee, said Monday what happened to Betty No. 2 with respect to her employers not paying her "happens quite often."

"This woman's desperate," he said. "And women like her (self-employed) are so vulnerable to this type of thing."

It's families like those of the Bettys that the Colonist 500 Fund is aimed at helping.

Cheques from the fund help to pay rent, heat, light, water, medicine, clothing and food bills.

During the weekend $1,017.74 was added to the fund, bringing the total to $11,571.23. But with the fund's closing date set for this Thursday, the fund has considerable distance to cover yet to match last year's record $15,000 collection.

Good-hearted area citizens can make donations to the fund by either mailing or dropping off their contributions at The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or Avis Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas.

Wortham admits theft of bear

U.S. Travellers Admit Crimes in Russia

LENINGRAD (AP) — Two Americans have pleaded guilty to Soviet charges of currency violations and both expressed regrets for what one called "foolish acts."

The pleas of Graddock M. Gilmour Jr., 24, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Buel Ray Wortham, 25, of North Little Rock, Ark., both former U.S. Army lieutenants, were entered Monday — the opening day of their trial in city court.

UP TO EIGHT
They could get sentences of three to eight years for the currency violations. The trial is expected to last three days.

"I want to say that I regret this action," Gilmour told the judge, Anna T. Isakova.

"I regret bypassing the state bank of the U.S.S.R. and I regret the trouble I have caused the Soviet people."

'FOOLISH ACTS'

Wortham, also charged with the theft of an antique bear statue from a Leningrad hotel, told the judge and two lay assessors what he had committed "just foolish acts."

Both were arrested Oct. 1 as they were about to leave for Finland. Gilmour was released on $11,000 bail Dec. 1. But Soviet authorities refused to release Wortham.

Gilmour's father, a prominent lawyer, was in court to hear his son testify.

The indictment, read at the start of the session, said Wortham illegally exchanged $35 U.S. and 35 Finnish marks for rubles on the black market in three different deals.

Prosecutor Alexander Borodanov asked whether he had made the deals for profit and Wortham said "that is correct."

"I didn't know that a $30 profit risked eight years in jail, but I do now."

Gilmour concluded his statement to the court by saying that his 60 days in solitary confinement in jail "gave me sufficient time to think over what I had done; I have learned a lesson."

Wortham said "that is correct."

To Arrange Ceasefire Talks

U.S. Gives U Thant Carte Blanche

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The U.S. has asked Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations to do whatever he thinks necessary to bring about talks aimed at a ceasefire in Vietnam.

The Americans pledged full co-operation to that end in making the request Monday in a letter handed to the secretary-general by U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg during a 20-minute meeting.

CAREFUL STUDY
Asked by reporters how soon he expected some conclusion, Goldberg said: "That's up to the secretary-general."

Thant said "I am studying this very carefully."

The letter came five days before a scheduled 48-hour Christmas truce in Vietnam.

Goldberg recalled that on Dec. 8, Pope Paul urged that the temporary truce be lengthened and "become the occasion for sincere negotiations."

Thant expressed hope that all concerned would heed that appeal.

He also recalled that he told the General Assembly Sept. 22 that "no difference can be reached without contact, discussion or negotiations."

He wrote Thant: "This holds equally true with regard to arrangements for a mutual cessation of hostilities."

NECESSARY TALKS
"We turn to you, therefore, with the hope and the request that you will take whatever steps you consider necessary to bring about the necessary discussions which could lead to such a ceasefire."

"I can assure you that the government of the United States will co-operate fully with you in getting such discussions started promptly and in bringing them to a successful completion."

Goldberg went to the council after the failure of missions he and U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman undertook to many world capitals last December.

Hydrofoil Decision Delayed Two Months

OTTAWA (CP) — It will take another two months to decide whether the navy's experimental hydrofoil program is to continue, Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Monday.

The prototype was severely damaged by fire in the Sorel, Que., shipyard a few weeks ago.

Replying to Robert McCleave (PC-Hallifax), Mr. Hellyer said extent of the damage still is being assessed. It would take several more weeks to get a clear picture of what would be involved in continuing the project.

Footage the Bill

FINANCE MINISTER SHARP introduced Canadians to the debit side of the welfare state when he spelled out quite clearly in his budget how the bill for the new government hand-outs would be met.

The extra money for needy old-age pensioners will cost the country an extra $280,000,000 in the forthcoming year. The fund that meets the current obligation is only in balance, and Mr. Sharp proposes that the taxpayers forthwith should cough up the new requirements.

He is doing this in two ways, both of which will mainly affect the individual, although it will also be tough on some types of industry.

The old-age security tax is increased from two per cent to four per cent with the maximum individual contribution raised from $120 to $240. This will raise $135,000,000 this year.

The new tax will have its main impact on the not-so-poor and the not-so-rich. Everyone with a taxable income of $3,000 and over, after all deductions, will progressively become due for the extra $120 a year. But the person in the up-to-$10,000 class will feel the loss of $120 a year a lot more than the executive who earns $40,000 to $50,000.

Mr. Sharp's only other way of raising the needed revenue is through an increase of one per cent in the federal sales tax — from 11 per cent to 12 per cent.

Although foodstuffs and some other items do not pay this tax at all, the extra one per cent will hit a wide variety of the goods bought by the man-in-the-street. Mr. Sharp is trying to soften his pill when he says the new tax will represent less than one per cent in the cost of living index, but he will convince only a few.

The federal tax is applied at the manufacturers' level, and once the product has gone through the normal wholesale and retail channels the one per cent will expand like Topsy.

However Mr. Sharp is not putting the extra tax on building materials because he is alarmed at the decline in new home construction, and that, at least, is something.

The lesson of minibudget, however, is plain. Mr. Sharp may have done the right things or he may not, but the fact remains that the country cannot expect to have its cake and eat it too.

A Good Omen

IF THERE WAS FEAR that the municipalities of the Victoria and Vancouver metropolitan areas were going to wake up one morning to find the bus systems left on their doorsteps, such apprehension will have been dispelled by the announcement that B.C. Hydro will continue to operate the systems through the end of 1967.

As late as October, political opponents found reason to accuse Premier Bennett of gross deceit because he had earlier denounced as a complete falsehood the talk of Hydro "dumping" the money-losing transit operations on the municipalities. The occasion for the accusation was the notification of North Vancouver city and district that, on expiry of the franchise there, Hydro would continue to operate the buses on an interim basis pending further discussions with the municipalities on "operation or disposal."

But, as was noted at the time, Premier Bennett as well as denying any intention to "dump" the buses on the local taxpayers, had also stated that the province through Hydro would negotiate a fair arrangement in a sound, business-like way, and that if the municipalities did not like the resulting deal, they could then appeal to the cabinet.

Even the critics of the government who chose to ignore this explanation in advance of the power authority's possible "disposal" of the weekend's announcement, that the municipalities are not going to be hurried into an arrangement which their citizens — who are also provincial voters, and numerous — can see as distinctly unfair.

Mayor Hugh Stephen would prefer to have, rather than the extension, a settlement soon on the questions of who is to run the buses, who is to make up their deficits, and how.

But the fact that Hydro (and behind it the government) is in no rush can probably be taken as a good omen, for though British Columbia has only recently had an election, each passing month takes the province closer to another. And it seems quite clear that Premier Bennett is going to be increasingly concerned with the support, or lack of it, that his party receives from the big urban centres.

Strength of the Fleet

SOME OF THOSE who rush to defend the provocative policies of the minister of national defence, and attempt to prove that the navy suffers no lack because of them, trip over their own enthusiasm.

In the December 17 issue of Maclean's Magazine, contributor Hal Tennant makes the astonishing statement that the RCN now has 23 helicopter-destroyers operational, in all respects ready for war.

This is nonsense. Canada has nine helicopter-destroyers in service.

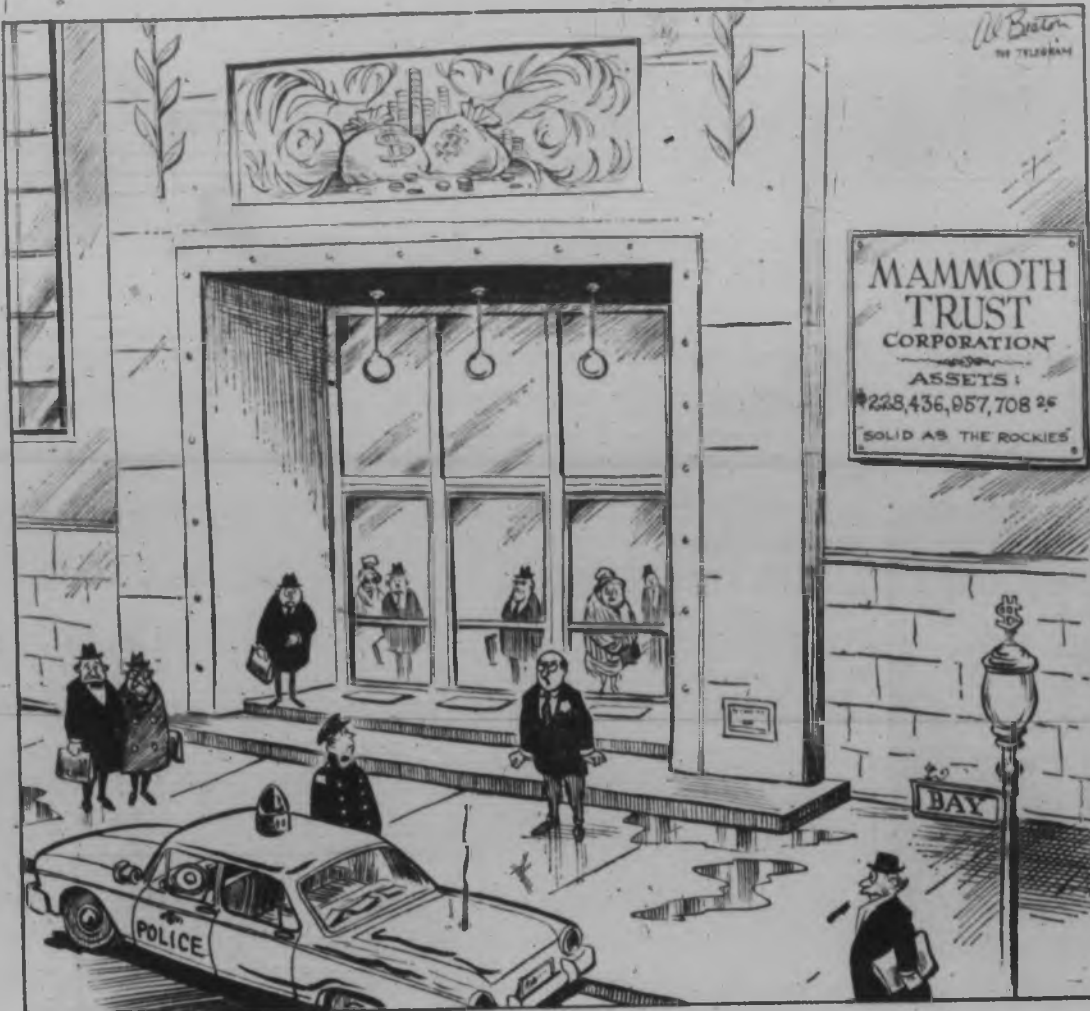

Mr. Tennant also discloses that there are three submarines in the fleet. The statement is misleading, because only one of the three Oberon class submarines ordered has been commissioned. A second submarine, HMCS Grilse, is a venerable American craft based at Esquimalt on loan for the exercising of anti-submarine units. A Royal Navy submarine is currently exercising with RCN fleet units out of Halifax but is not a part of the Canadian navy.

This same authority maintains Canada has 43 warships which could stream into action if we went to war tomorrow.

But according to a navy release of April last, there are 19 war vessels operational on the Atlantic coast, with another six in ready reserve, and 11 at Esquimalt, with two in reserve. However, since that announcement it appears there have been further reductions in operational strength, for naval authorities here now list five ships in reserve at Esquimalt. But even counting the "hot reserve" units—which have not the hands to man them—this makes a total of only 38 war vessels available in emergency.

Incidentally the navy lists 37 vessels as operational, possibly because HMCS Bonaventure is undergoing extensive refit.

Mr. Tennant has been grievously misinformed and Maclean's Magazine has inadvertently misled its readership.

By TOM TAYLOR

I READ somewhere of the opinion being expressed that a man of 50 years finds himself dependent on what he learned before he was 20, which I profoundly hope was never true. Otherwise most of us have loved a blank slate past few decades.

The theory seems to be that if one has enjoyed a thorough education gratitude for this grows with the years; because the natural period of learning is youth.

True enough, I suppose, but a few minutes ago I learned for instance that the Mackenzie River is 2,600 miles long. I don't expect to appear on a quiz program or paddle on the Mackenzie, but it is reassuring to know that my mind did not close its door at 21.

What is meant by a thorough education is debatable and never more so, I feel sure, than today. There are as many views about current curriculums as there are arguments at the UN. One can think of Churchill, however, whose own account of his schooling suggests how fortunate it is that learning does not stop at the age of 20. He was no great shakes at school.

Quite patently Churchill's gratitude for his education would stem from the ambition that overtook him as a student when he discovered literature and the world that was to be his oyster began to open.

Learning, I am persuaded, is a matter which for most people is one of absorption. Only the dedicated person has the strength to be an avid academic student when he grows up, but that does not mean one's education is finished when one lays his textbooks away.

What we call formal education is not to be lightly set aside. It can be the basis for much gratitude and all these fortunate of higher learning should bless their lucky stars. This is a foundation upon which may be built a strong house of education.

And for the naturally gifted maturity will flower the more because of advanced studies in early years.

But learning goes on even among the most disinterested. Another name for it is experience, which if not of academic vintage is nevertheless a shaping force in both the individual and society in general.

In this respect youth itself, while bent to its studies, is also a repository, for the present is probably the most alive period in all history and one would be a dullard indeed to remain unaffected, irrespective of age.

Reading alone, as the maxim has it, maketh the full man, but even if one never opens a book he cannot escape awareness of his surroundings or the movements and discoveries of his age.

They crowd upon him and do not pass him by. Essentially the fact is that the human mind is the most receptive instrument of human knowledge, and it picks knowledge out of the air by an alchemy of its own. Sometimes you wonder how your neighbor knows so much about this or that, and he could not tell you because the absorption of knowledge is as intangible as it is wonderful.

And the most wonderful thing is that the process does not stop when one ceases to be 20 years of age. This indeed is where gratitude for education properly lies.

Grits Turn Their Guns on NDP While Tories Tend Their Wounds

By GREG CONNOLLEY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ONE of the oddities of the current political situation at Ottawa is that the Liberals are worried about the state of the Conservative party.

After writhing under the tongue of Tory leader John Diefenbaker all these years, the Liberals now look at him with some sympathy.

From hating and fearing John Diefenbaker the Grits have come to treat him with considerable respect.

As the Liberals see it, he is not now the main enemy, nor is his party.

The Grit hierarchy suddenly woke up after the recent National Conservative convention to discover that the Tory party was in deep trouble.

They saw their traditional political rivals apparently hopelessly split in two groups and Mr. Diefenbaker in serious difficulty.

The Liberals realized that if an election had come along at this time, the Conservatives would have been shattered.

At first thought this was a delightful consideration. And the happy Grits pondered the thought of grinding the Tories into the dust and really giving Mr. Diefenbaker his lumps.

But there were sober second thoughts among senior, responsible Liberals, not excluding many cabinet ministers.

For what they saw was that the Conservative party in its present state of shock, very likely could not fulfil its role of providing the alternative government for Canada.

Instead of the Tories looking eagerly to taking power, the Liberals saw another prospect waiting for an election to make it the official opposition party in the Commons.

The government envisioned the NDP, sitting back and watching with great satisfaction as the Tory party tried to destroy itself.

For the New Democrats were convinced that if the struggle between Mr. Diefenbaker and Conservative Association president Dalton Camp were to be prolonged, they would gain in large measure indeed.

If the New Democrats were to become the official opposition in the Commons, they would be in a favorable position to push the Liberals to the political right.

They have been battling the rising NDP strength in constituencies, William Dennis, aided and abetted by the New Democratic organization, was elected mayor.

So, up in the Commons on Dec. 9 was Bryce Mackasey, a powerful Irish orator from Verdun, Quebec. And what did he say about the NDP — "They are a party of false propaganda."

Mr. Mackasey declared that the NDP were trying to be all things to all people. "They cannot be the voice in the Commons of labor, management, our senior citizens and young capitalists and everybody else," he argued.

The Verdun MP suggested the bumptious NDP were trying "to woo Bay Street, in view of the fact that the official opposition is at loggerheads with that eminent group of people."

And Mr. Mackasey called on to give the socialists a good going-over.

There'll be more of the same from the Grits, trying to keep those upstart New Democrats in their place until the Conservatives can recover — mind you, not too much of a recovery.

Birdcraft a Prospect For Inventive Genius

THE germ of a revolutionary new "birdcraft" industry may be taking shape at the Royal Aircraft Establishment in Farnborough.

An aeronautical scientist there, John Elliott, is working in his spare time on aircraft that flap their wings. He has discovered a mechanism that may lead to light birdcraft that could flap off almost vertically and very quietly, and would be simpler, cheaper and potentially much faster than helicopters.

"I thought I was crazy at first," Elliott says. "But you get used to the idea." Flapping-wing aircraft could combine the advantages of helicopters and fixed-wing machines. He believes that the possibilities now emerging are so exciting that research and development must "go professional" and get proper industrial and government support.

Elliott's increasingly expensive hobby has produced a series of experimental models to explore the laws of flapping flight, and he has arrived at a wing with a subtly designed hinge that reproduces the highly complex motions of birds' wings. He plans to incorporate this in a small-powered flying model, and also in a full-sized, man-powered birdcraft.

Elliott's efforts are endorsed by another experienced aerodynamicist and mathematician, Dr. Glenn Schaefer, who has just left private industry to take up a post at Loughborough University, where he is planning a detailed study of the aerodynamics of bird flight.

He believes that birds may be exploiting some very subtle and little understood aerodynamic effects with the help of their feathers. These twist and tilt during flight, under the bird's muscular control, in a way that may drastically reduce the drag of air. This may account for the remarkable feats of sustained flight—perhaps 1,200 miles non-stop—where some migratory birds evidently perform.

To investigate these effects, Dr. Schaefer has designed a special bird cage for installation in a wind tunnel, and hopes to

Russian Craftsman Had Magic Touch

By PETER WORTHINGTON from Moscow

I WAS driving my handsome blue Mercedes car around the loop in front of the Bolshoi theatre the other day when whammo... a large green van whinged in front of me and ripped off my left front headlight and buckled the fender like so much tin.

Suddenly, on that calm winter afternoon, I was off on another adventure into the pitfalls and hazards of living in Russia.

In any other country such an accident would be a nuisance. In Moscow, it could be an incalculable disaster.

There are few garages and no spare parts in Russia: certainly not for a Mercedes.

And to top it off, my car insurance had lapsed two days earlier. I had phoned to renew it that morning, but the insurance man was out.

For a moment, before battle began, I sat in the car and thought unpleasant thoughts. "Shucks (damn). Damn it, Fudge," I muttered, before leaping out to meet the irate van driver who was charging at me like the Red Army chasing Hitler.

"Fool!" yelled the man. "Whaddaya think you're doing? Sneaking in beside me. You oughta be banned..." Or the Russian equivalent.

With awesome composure I said there were two lanes, I was in one, he was in the other, then he decided to join me, and he shouldn't have done that.

Or words to that effect. The man kept yelling when, suddenly, a cop was tapping him on the shoulder.

"I saw everything," said the militiaman. "The foreigner is right — you are wrong. Papers please."

The man calmed down immediately.

I brooded about my bad luck. Where... how... when to get it fixed?

Russian drivers don't carry insurance. I'd had it.

But the guy was in the wrong, and he was worried.

"Come with me," he said. "I'm at a garage — I'll fix your car. Honest."

It would be worth a try. I shrugged and nodded. The fender looked awful.

"Okay," said the militiaman to me. "Here are his documents — don't give them back to him until he's fixed your car."

I followed him for miles. It seemed, to the outskirts of Moscow where we turned into a large compound called Motorpool No. 1.

The Mercedes was immediately smothered with admiring workers, who tut-tutted and all offered advice on the crushed headlight and fender.

My tormenter, who turned out to be quite a decent chap named Mikhail Ivanovich, insisted on lending me his sheepskin coat and hat. I said no, but he persisted.

In the workshop I knew I had made a mistake. It was filled with dent trucks and cars and the mechanics didn't inspire confidence.

"Forget about it... I'll go somewhere else," I said to Mikhail Ivanovich, who was evidently a boss of sorts.

"Where can anyone with a Mercedes go? Nonsense!" He found a can of paint in the trunk. There was a dispute going on about the headlight.

"Look," said the man. "Give me until tomorrow. Come back in 24 hours and it will be fixed. Okay?"

I was trapped, so we shook hands and I left. So what's 24 hours.

The idea of anything being fixed in Russia within 24 hours is laughable. To even have a key made takes two days. To get a plumber in, or a carpenter, or an electrician can take a week, and the job, whatever it is, can take days, weeks, months.

The next day I phoned. "Come around at 4 p.m. maybe," said the voice. So I did.

There was the same mass of mechanics at it. The fender was under a blaze of burning hot lights.

And it was fixed. The wrinkles were gone, the paint shining fresh and drying fast. I couldn't, literally, tell it had been hit. I was speechless.

"Do you have a glass for the light," asked my savior.

"Now where would I get that for a Mercedes?"

"Just thought I'd ask."

According to Plato

Atlantis A Fact

A new scientific theory suggests that the Atlantis legend is based on fact, but the lost continent lies in the Mediterranean rather than the Atlantic.

The philosopher Plato described Atlantis in two works, Timaeus and Critias, written about 370 BC, the National Geographic Society says. Plato reported that Egyptian priests told the Greek lawgiver Solon, who lived two centuries earlier, that Atlantis existed as a powerful kingdom 9,000 years before Solon's birth.

Located beyond Gibraltar, Atlantis was supposedly a country larger than Asia Minor and Libya combined; its armies overran the Mediterranean lands. One day the sea overwhelmed Atlantis, and it vanished forever.

Plato described Atlantis as an ideal commonwealth, rich in beauty and wealth. In the minds of the ancient Greeks, Atlantis became intertwined with Elysium, the place where the righteous dwell after death. Elysium was often placed in the lower world but sometimes also in the western sea, or Atlantic, like Atlantis.

Down through the ages, Atlantis has excited speculation. Medieval writers, who heard about Atlantis from Arabian geographers, believed the legend to be fact. Later scholars suggested that pre-Columbian civilizations in America might have been established by colonists from the lost continent.

UN Stands or Falls on Rhodesia

By LOUIS B. FLEMING, from United Nations

Security Council action imposing mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia has set the United Nations on a fateful course which will result either in a revitalization of the organization or in a disastrous confirmation of its impotence.

The United Nations has unleashed its ultimate weapon to defeat the white rebellion in Rhodesia.

There is, of course, another weapon in its arsenal, that of international military force. But under present world circumstances, its implementation is unlikely.

Therefore, in applying sections of chapter VII of the charter, the Council has gone as far as it can go. If it succeeds, it will have established its importance as an instrument for the peaceful settlement of one of the last painful problems of world decolonization.

If it fails, it will have reduced the United Nations to a sounding board of world problems, to an agency for occasional voluntary peace missions, to a distributor of economic development advice.

BACKGROUND

Implications Grave

The implications are grave. For, if the United Nations succeeds in crushing the rebellion in Rhodesia, it will find it harder to resist the same course to end the practice of racial discrimination in South Africa.

And the great powers, like the United States and Britain, which have supported action against Rhodesia, may find it difficult to define the difference that would preclude the same sort of attack on apartheid.

Short of a direct assault on South Africa, there will be the almost inevitable demand for punitive action against South Africa and Portugal in the probable circumstance that they ignore the sanctions.

Under terms of the charter, all members as well as non-member states are bound to enforce sanctions. For the first time, therefore, any breach of the sanctions will be, in fact, a violation of international law.

African members, with apparent unanimity, would have preferred that the sanctions include a procedure for implementation. They proposed that Britain be given unlimited authority to enforce the ban on oil shipments to Rhodesia, a proposal with extraordinary ramifications, since Rhodesia is a landlocked state that must receive all of its petroleum overland by pipeline, rail or road.

It was one thing for the Council to give Britain authority last April to use force if necessary to blockade all shipments to Rhodesia through the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique. That was without precedent, but to suggest a further blockade would mean a land and air operation as well as a naval blockade of all of southern Africa.

Certainly no international force is conceivable for such a mission, which renders all the more impossible a single-handed effort by Britain.

Cheating Query

But the very impracticability of enforcement dramatizes the problem for the United Nations: what will it do if there is cheating?

The Africans have said they will insist again that Britain use force. But it is already clear that, even if force was approved, Britain is economically too vulnerable to survive such a confrontation with South Africa.

There is no provision for compromise, no escape except total surrender. And history teaches that demands for unconditional surrender usually prolong rather than shorten international struggles.

Also, many people have questioned that the United Nations should have directed its ultimate weapon to a dispute which hardly qualifies as the most serious disturbance to world peace.

This case at least qualifies for UN action because it falls in the realm of the possible because all the big powers are agreed, and possible because of the flagrant nature of the rebellion in Rhodesia.

In one sense, Rhodesia symbolizes the principal future threat to world security involving racism. Secretary General U Thant has emphasized that the present ideological disputes will be insignificant compared with the dangers in the future of dangers that divide rich and poor, particularly because the rich generally are white and the poor generally colored.

Therefore, what the United Nations is able to do in pacifying Rhodesia will establish precedence for its ability to arbitrate other racial confrontations.

For the United Nations at this point to have rejected Britain's appeal for help would have hardened the crisis. The threat to international peace and security which the Security Council affirmed in its action may not be entirely visible. But given time, the domination of 4,000,000 blacks by 230,000 whites cannot but be explosive.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg argued that the action now being taken falls within "the art of the possible." For the sake of the United Nations, he had better be right.

Hungry India Wasted Seven Years

By ARTHUR J. DOMMEN From New Delhi

The human tragedy of India's food crisis is one of 30,000,000 human beings eating roots and grass in a vast dust bowl where little else grows. But for India's government, the tragedy is one of seven wasted years.

In 1959, a Ford Foundation agricultural team spent 3½ months in India assessing the country's food problem. In a preface to their report, the 13-man team warned that India would face famine beginning in 1966 unless something drastic were done to step up food production (or unless by some miracle India's population suddenly stopped growing).

The year 1966 was the terminal year of the government's third five-year plan. Beginning with the second five-year plan, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government had launched an expensive drive to build industry.

The Ford Foundation experts warned that unless the third plan gave back priority to agriculture there would ensue a food crisis which in the end would cost the government millions in foreign exchange.

The third plan went ahead with the industrialization drive. The fourth plan, which started theoretically in March this year but is still not nailed down because of economic dislocations, hopes to give priority to increasing agricultural production.

Among specific recommendations of the Ford Foundation team was "procurement of fertilizers and means of producing high-analysis fertilizers should be given a top priority, including foreign exchange as necessary."

Today the Indian government still has not made up its mind to ram through a badly needed crash program for production of fertilizers and still quibbles with foreign aid donor nations over such details as the sources of the ingredients to be used in the proposed fertilizer production.

The report also said: "The team believes that India can make greater and more immediate gains in food production by intensifying expenditure of time and effort on water management than by constructing large-scale irrigation projects."

Confronted with the present famine threat, government teams are touring the countryside with portable pumps to help farmers whose fields adjoin parched canal beds.

"The team also recommends that more emphasis be placed on irrigation projects which will yield rapid returns in food production, such as tube wells and shallow masonry wells," the report said.

Today the government has suddenly launched a drive to dig a million improvised tube wells in the space of a few months in the drought area.

Summing up its recommendations for overcoming the physical limitations on India's food production, the team's report points out: "There are tremendous physical possibilities for increasing production per acre if they can be achieved. There are no inherent soil, climate or other physical reasons for the present low yields."

The report served as the basis for setting up a number of districts scattered around India with the means at their disposal for what the Ford Foundation calls "intensive agricultural development." Farmers are encouraged to use fertilizers, better varieties of hybrid seed and so forth. Within these districts the results achieved have generally been good. But the Indian government has moved only slowly to disseminate the lessons elsewhere and in many sectors such as fertilizer, production is simply tied up in its own plans and financial juggling to meet the demand that already exists. # Red Chinese Steel Used to Build U.S. Military Bases in Vietnam

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH, from Singapore

Communist China has sold several thousand tons of steel to the Americans in South Vietnam for the use in the construction of new air and army bases needed in the escalating war against the Viet Cong.

Traffic in round and flat steel bars worth about $1,000,000 reached its peak earlier this year. Only Peking could plug a crucial gap in American supplies by meeting the specifications, the quantities, and the six-week delivery date that would satisfy hard-pressed U.S. military purchasing officers.

The steel was sold through intermediaries here in Singapore, who transhipped it to Saigon, and the Chinese Communists were paid through banks in Hong Kong.

Although the bars were either unmarked or had their markings filed off, reliable trading sources agree that all parties concerned, from Peking to the Pentagon, must have known both the origin and the destination of the bars. They can be used for anything from the building of bunkers to the laying of metal runways for American bombers and fighters.

The questionable commerce slackened in mid-year, when Japanese and Belgian suppliers caught up with mounting American demands and U.S. officials began to exercise a tighter control.

This disclosure has provoked suspicions that — even more ironically — cement manufactured in Haiphong, the main port of North Vietnam, whose outskirts have been under almost constant American air attack, may also have been reaching U.S. air force construction sites in South Vietnam. During the past year, big deliveries of cement from Haiphong have arrived in Singapore, coinciding with bulk sales of cement from Singapore to Saigon. They have fallen off only since the government here imposed a quota to protect the local embryonic cement industry.

The Haiphong cement was cheap, although the cost of shipping it from North Vietnam was increased by special insurance payments against the risk of American air attack in the Gulf of Tonkin.

In all such discrete and indirect transactions, Hong Kong constitutes the vital junction at which East and West touch. The leakage of the Chinese steel story follows accusations published in Izvestia last month that the Chinese Communists were trading with their arch-enemies in the U.S. on a grand scale through the British Crown Colony while denouncing Moscow for alleged collusion with Washington.

Experts have estimated that last year about 150,000,000 seeped under the bamboo curtain from South Vietnam, and was quietly shipped to Hong Kong to be exchanged for sterling. In turn, it was used to buy bullion for Peking on the London market (much of it American).

Chinese Communist diplomats sources here yesterday ridiculed a Singapore report that China sold thousands of tons of steel to enable the Americans to build new air and army bases in South Vietnam.

"The report is an absolute slander and there is no truth in it at all," said the spokesman at the Chinese Embassy here today.

Hitler 'Climate' Missing

Kiesinger

AP, from New York

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger of West Germany said Sunday there are no conditions in the German republic today such as those that led to the rise of Hitler.

The chancellor, speaking sometimes in German and sometimes in English, appeared on a nationally-televised programme recorded in Bonn.

Replying to questions, he said the National Democratic party could not obtain more than five-per-cent of the vote in any election.

"Of course, I'm not a prophet, but there are no conditions today such as those which led to Hitler's rise."

He named unemployment among these conditions.

He also denied that any expansionist movement in Germany could lead to a return of neo-Nazism and added that the German people, "after all they have been through," would "never allow that to happen again."

Nor would Germany's desire for reunification aid any return to neo-nationalism or neo-Nazism.

Speaking about Germany's Eastern frontiers, the chancellor said the republic, which he described as "the only legitimate German government," is not able to agree with the Soviet concept that the frontiers have been "set for all time."

But any revision eventually made would have to be decided by a "reunited Germany and the other powers" and that this could only be through peaceful negotiations.

On his own association with the Nazi party, the chancellor said "this is a very long story" and one which he could not fully answer now except to say that he was cleared by trials after the war which noted he had "effectively resisted" the "National Socialist movement at the risk of his life, freedom and property."

Lovers of lucidity were aghast during the Second World War when the U.S. defence establishment wrote a 1,000 obfuscatory words instructing people to pull windshades in the event of an air raid.

Bureaucrats have not improved with vintage.

The computer age and its techniques have brought a special brand of moterle adjectives, adverbs and nouns which defy the dictionary or the educational establishments.

Fortunately, all is not lost. It still is possible to take the offensive and perhaps even win a battle with Pentagones, thanks to imaginative military personnel.

The Canadians here have invented a simple device which can make any man the semantic equal of the Department of Defence anywhere.

Key to the system is the table of three columns of words below, numbered from zero to nine. It is called a "buzzphrase generator."

0. integrated
1. total
2. systematized
3. parallel
4. functional
5. responsive
6. optimal
7. synchronized
8. compatible
9. balance

Column 2
0. management
1. organizational
2. monitored
3. reciprocal
4. digital
5. logistical
6. transitional
7. incremental

Column 3

2. capability
3. mobility
4. programming
5. concept
6. time-phase
7. projection
8. hardware
9. contingency

The procedure is simple. Think of any three-digit number at random. Then select the corresponding buzzwords from the columns above. Put them together and you are an instant expert.

Take, for example, the number 567. Take word five from column one; word six from column two and word seven from column three. Ergo, you have said "responsive transitional projection."

There it is. Instant authority at your fingertips.

Don't worry if you come across somebody else using similar language. Chances are they don't know any more than you do what you are talking about.

Expectant Mother in Tears At Hunger Lunch Success

OTTAWA (CP) — A Turkish-born expectant mother burst into tears at the success of a "hunger lunch" she organized Monday to aid famine victims in India's Bihar state.

About 1,000 persons came to the old Union Station building for a paper cup of vegetable soup and half a slice of unbuttered bread.

They were asked to give what they would have spent on lunch to the Canadian branch of the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief.

Mrs. Ayla Weston, 30, a graduate in geophysics of the University of Istanbul and Carleton University, cried from exhaustion and happiness as the last cups of soup were served.

"It was just as successful as we had hoped," she said.

Speakers from four political parties, the churches and universities spoke during the lunch. Folk-singing groups alternated with the speakers in the echoing station which has been closed to train traffic since a new station opened six months ago.

The Ottawa Oxford committee hoped to raise $3,000 from the lunch. Similar fund-raising meals at Montreal and Toronto each raised about $1,000 each for Oxford, a committee begun in 1942 by businessmen in Oxford, England, to aid Greek war victims.

In a speech at the lunch Monday, Transport Minister Pickersgill said Parliament would be asked to spend $75,000,000 for famine relief in India during 1967.

U.S. to Teach Food Lesson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is taking a tough attitude on future food shipments to India to try to convince other nations that America can no longer bear this burden alone, administration officials said Monday night.

The said the world is certain to face a major food crisis in about 10 years unless food deficit countries such as India do more to help themselves and those with food surpluses adopt a more liberal attitude toward helping countries which have chronic shortages.

These officials emphasized that the United States intends to keep its pipeline of grain to India flowing, one way or another. But it is bringing pressure on other surplus countries to carry more of the load.

SOME AS GIFT

The United States during the past 18 months shipped India with $1,000,000,000 worth of food, giving some of it outright and taking payment for the rest in Indian currency, which is of very limited use to the United States. The rest of the world, during this period, sent only $250,000,000 in food aid, asking hard cash for most of it.

Baby's Death Unlikely With Balanced Diet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver doctors testified Monday that 22-month-old Leonidas Demosten probably would have lived had he been fed a normal diet.

Dr. George Yamanaka said the boy could have died either of malnutrition or a skin disease, but a normal diet would have kept him alive.

BABE TESTIMONY
Dr. Harold Krivel, a pediatrician, gave the same testimony at a preliminary hearing into criminal negligence charges against Dr. Beverly Eldon Rogers, 73, charged following the boy's death June 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Demosten, the boy's parents, testified earlier they took their baby to

Dr. Rogers for treatment of a skin disease and he prescribed a diet of mashed carrots, celery, beets, green peppers, radish, wheat sprouts, grapes and tomatoes.

Asked by prosecutor Al Cliffe whether such a diet would sustain the protein level in the child, Dr. Krivel answered: "No, I wouldn't think so."

The doctor said the skin disease by itself would not prove fatal, but that infections such as pneumonia and malnutrition, caused by a low protein diet, could prove fatal.

Dr. Yamanaka said he had been treating the boy for a skin ailment known as Lina's disease up until last April.

"The disease resulted in a massive loss of protein which could have caused the child's death by malnutrition,"

Dr. Yamanaka said he wanted the boy to go to hospital April 18, but the father refused. He said when he was called to the home June 11, he found the child with swollen ankles and blue hands and feet and immediately ordered the child to hospital. He died later in the day.

The hearing continues.

Crew of 13 Dies as Blizzards Hit Europe

By REUTERS

Gales, blizzards and floods brought the worst weather of the winter to northern Europe during the weekend. In the Baltic all 13 crew members of a grounded Greek freighter were feared dead.

The freighter, the 910-ton Sinergasia, went aground off Holmsund, northern Sweden, but gales foiled rescuers until Monday when a rescue ship and a helicopter reached it and spotted a dead seaman aboard. Two more bodies seen in the water and two more on the shore were thought to be from the Sinergasia. It was believed the rest of the crew could not have survived long in the icy water.

OTHERS, TOO

Several other ships were in trouble in the gale-lashed Baltic.

Two Norwegian whaling vessels broke loose from the tug towing them Sunday but their crews were rescued.

On land, the Finns dug themselves out of snowdrifts after the year's worst storm blew the roofs off many homes Sunday night.

AIRPORTS CLOSED

Airports were closed, ferries unable to sail and trains and long-distance buses were delayed.

Melting snow brought the threat of floods. In Lemvig, Denmark, high tides flooded streets and basements. Melting snow added to own problems. Paris streets were in chaos, as flooding closed main roads along the Seine River just as the city was thronged by pre-Christmas crowds.

In Scotland, hit by wide-spread weekend floods, the rain eased Monday and gave rescue workers a chance to clear roads and railways blocked by landslides. But more rain was forecast.

Severe frost gripped northern and central Italy and parts of the Venice Lagoon were frozen. In the Middle East, the temperature hit freezing in Damascus and snow fell on Syria Monday.

Economy Entering Slowdown Year

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian economy appears to be cooling off and there will likely be a moderation in wage and price increases, Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Monday night.

He made his carefully-worded predictions as he presented his mini-budget with the bad news for Canadian taxpayers.

"Developments in the past three months suggest to me that the undesirable acceleration of the demands upon our economy has moderated. There has been some economic readjustment taking place following the excessive rates of expansion that occurred earlier this year.

"The effects of a large number of strikes have also been appearing in the statistics.

"My judgment is that the economic expansion now taking place is more in line with the capability of our economy to grow steadily without inflation.

"While prices and wages are increasing at rates that are still excessive, I now believe we can expect some moderation in the trend of wage increases and further restraint in pricing policies," he told the Commons.

Mr. Sharp said the economy is in a state of "delicate balance" and the government must make sure it doesn't introduce policies which could cause a serious decline or a resumption of inflationary pressures.

Council View Shared

In this respect the finance minister agreed with the third annual report of the Economic Council of Canada which urged the government to adopt a wait and see attitude.

Mr. Sharp said the outlook for 1967 cannot be fully assessed without knowledge of what the U.S. economy will do and the capital spending plans of business, municipalities and the provinces.

"I believe, however, the rate of increase in such capital expenditures will be less than in the past two years, and should be a closer match to our growing capacity," he said.

No Hesitation Needed

"The government will not hesitate to bring before Parliament at short notice a measure to end the collection of the refundable tax on business profits or even to make reductions in taxes if that is necessary to achieve a proper fiscal policy for economic purposes.

"I believe, along with the governor of the Bank of Canada, that the appropriate mix of policies in such circumstances would be one which permitted some easing of the credit situation," he said.

The minister made it clear the federal government would not tolerate the same degree of wage and price rises in 1967 it has accepted in 1966.

"If some moderation in demands with inflationary consequences does not occur we may well find it necessary to impose sufficient fiscal restraint upon the economy as a whole to check them.

"At this time it does not appear such further action will be necessary, and I hope it will not be," he said.

"Consequently I am not proposing any general changes in taxation for the purpose either of stimulating or of applying further restraints to the economy."

Pension Tax Up

ery will not be affected by the increase to 12 per cent from 11.

The government wants to encourage more house building, particularly in the private field.

Mr. Sharp announced in his budget last March 29 the sales tax will be reduced on production machinery next April 1 to six per cent, and lifted entirely after April 1, 1968. This plan is unchanged.

PRESSURE HAS EASED

Mr. Sharp said he had considered whether the general state of the economy needed any stimulus or dampening measures at this time, and decided the strong inflationary pressures of the last few months have moderated.

He could see some lessening of credit tightness in the months ahead, and said he would be willing to change last spring's imposition of a five-per-cent refundable tax on corporate cash flows, if that need develops.

MINI-BUDGET

The finance minister, delivering the first mini-budget since 1960, he called it a mini-budget—focused his full attention on the old age security fund, set up in 1952 to pay for old age pensions.

The rates originally were two per cent of taxable income with a maximum of $60 a year for individuals, and two per cent of corporate income and a two-per-cent sales tax.

BURDEN GROWS

The fund, he noted, operated for many years at a deficit and had small surpluses only in 1960-61 and 1961-62 until the last three years when surpluses were amassed with higher rates.

But the guaranteed-income plan, which will pay an extra $30 monthly supplement to pensioners who need it, will impose an additional $280,000,000 burden on the fund. This will grow as the qualifying age for the pension drops year by year to reach 65 in 1980.

SEES SURPLUS

Mr. Sharp said that with the new taxes he is imposing, the fund should have a surplus through to the end of its 1970-71 fiscal year.

The increase to $240 a year from $120 in the maximum old age security fund payment by individuals will yield about $135,000,000 a year at current income levels.

DEDUCTIONS ADJUSTED

Payroll deductions will be adjusted after Jan. 1 to take the increase into account and it will be fully in effect when taxpayers make out their 1967 tax returns in the spring of 1968.

The increase in sales tax can be expected to increase the place is more in line with the capability of our economy to grow steadily without inflation.

"While prices and wages are increasing at rates that are still excessive, I now believe we can expect some moderation in the trend of wage increases and further restraint in pricing policies," he told the Commons.

Mr. Sharp said the economy is in a state of "delicate balance" and the government must make sure it doesn't introduce policies which could cause a serious decline or a resumption of inflationary pressures.

Economy Balanced

Tax Reaction Philosophic

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp's tax changes announced in his mini-budget Monday night are a classical case of why cabinet ministers never win popularity contests—but at the same time it is hard to be critical, said Ronald Robertson, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation.

Commenting on the doubling of the maximum old age pension tax and a one-per-cent increase in the federal sales tax to 12 per cent, Mr. Robertson said Mr. Sharp "resisted the temptation to play Santa Claus with the old age pension increases."

SAME POSITION

He said Mr. Sharp seemed to be aiming at taking out of the economy what will be put back into it because of the extra spending power to be given through higher pensions for elderly people.

"So the economy as a whole will be left in the same net position as before the changes."

Noting that the increase in the sales tax does not apply to building materials or production machinery, Mr. Robertson said it is technically hard to have a disparity in rates, but the imposition of the tax on these categories had had unfavorable repercussions.

PRICE PRESSURE

A further increase of the tax would have increased pressure on prices in the construction industry and the government obviously did not want to do that, he said.

There were half a dozen ways in which Mr. Sharp could have obtained the revenue needed for the increase in the old age pensions, but it was impossible to say one was better than the other.

R. G. Johnson, executive vice-president of the Canadian Institute of Steel Construction, said he was glad to hear the sales tax on building materials was not to be changed.

CASH STILL TIGHT

"This should be helpful to me," he said.

However, he doesn't look for any great increase in construction during the next few months since the tight money situation still is the main factor holding down the industry.

Donald Carlson, secretary of price gaps—between the sales tax between Canada and the United States motor vehicles—apparently will be increased.

"The U.S. sales tax is seven per cent and with the new Canadian sales tax, the tax differential is increased to five from four per cent."

"It is difficult to speculate on members of the cabinet and my own officials, about the contents of my budget message."

Van Luvven, too, had denied it completely, he added.

Trying to recall the Vancouver reception, Mr. Sharp said he did not speak to Van Luvven privately.

He was not sure who Van Luvven was in the room.

In one report, Sharp was told, he was quoted as expressing a preference for excise tax over income tax.

"I really don't recall the things I talked about," he replied.

"You can imagine that when people ask you about the budget, you say, 'Well, I can't talk about the budget.'"

"And when they ask about the respective merits of various taxes, you talk in a general way."

"INCIDENT CLOSED"

Asked if he was asked about the respective merits of different taxes, he replied: "I really can't say."

Question: "Are you satisfied that this incident is closed, that it doesn't affect your integrity as a minister?"

Answer: "Oh yes. My mind is completely free of any feeling about this."

"I am scrupulous in these things. I never talked to anyone outside about my intentions as minister of finance, particularly on the eve of the budget."

"I gather that he (Van Luvven) is denying any proof of this tion, said business "just should not have such a very heavy tax imposed at this time."

"If we want to develop Canada to its full potential we won't do it by adding taxes."

"Such a tax will make Canadian industry appear even less competitive to those across the border than it does now."

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumtree, past president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, was philosophical about the tax changes.

"I suppose if we want all these social services we must pay for them."

She said she was sorry to hear that the increase would apply to drugs, "although Mr. Sharp has agreed to remove the sales tax on drugs if a federal committee on drug prices recommends it."

"HARD ON POOR"

"Any price increase will be hard on those with low and fixed incomes. But other people can probably afford to pay for it. I don't think it will be too detrimental."

Henry Joly of Quebec City, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said the government's "Christmas present to the deserving pensioners of Canada proves to the hilt the fundamental truth that there is a price tag attached to every social welfare measure."

RETURN KNOWN

"Once again, many of us will have to work a little bit longer for the government so far as personal taxes are concerned. The increase in the federal sales tax, however, will affect all of us as it will be reflected on the shelves of most Canadian stores."

He said it is a matter of regret that the government did not try to raise at least some of the money it needs by cutting other spending.

"A reduction in them at this time would not have been any less effective than tonight's further turn of the tax screw."

At the same time, however, Mr. Joly said Mr. Sharp wisely avoided taxes that would hurt Canada's competitive position.

story of having got inside information.

A questioner said that Mr. Van Luvven had made his deduction based on contact with Mr. Sharp and what he had said in a public gathering.

Nobody else had been speculating, Sharp retorted. "I don't understand the story at all," he said.

Nobody else from his department was present. He was in Vancouver to make a speech at the Canadian Club.

Pressed to say what was discussed Mr. Sharp said he remembered saying that one per cent of sales tax would raise $185,000,000, and each point of income tax would raise $45,000,000.

"PROPER ACTIVITY"

Then he said he couldn't recall if he had said this at the Vancouver meeting. Many people asked that question.

Mr. Sharp said Van Luvven was following "the perfectly proper activity, trying to guess what the government is trying to do."

The press had been doing that, too.

Tax Amendment Would Mean Non-Confidence

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Waldo Monteith, Conservative financial critic, blasted tax increases announced in the mini-budget Monday night and introduced an amendment that amounts to a non-confidence motion.

"They're following the meanest pension increase with a mean tax," the former health minister said in reply to Finance Minister Sharp's budget speech in the Commons.

Mr. Monteith moved that the old age pension supplement be paid out of the old age security fund, which had a surplus of $353,000,000, before any taxes were booted.

The MP for Perth, Ont., said the government is giving more money to needy aged persons with one hand and taking it away with the other in higher taxes.

His amendment, not expected to come to a vote until after the Christmas recess, says any increase in the "oppressive tax burden" borne by Canadians would intensify hardship suffered by people whose living standards are reduced by inflation.

Mr. Monteith said there was no need for any budget at this time. The budget debate was adjourned after he introduced his motion, which would entail an election or the government's resignation if carried.

Monteith

He said the sales tax increase by one point to 12 per cent will hit every Canadian in the pocketbook, including needy pensioners.

Mr. Monteith noted that the minister claimed his budget contained a Christmas present for Canada's older people.

"I claim it is no Santa Claus budget but a Scrooge budget," he said.

Time Wasn't Right

Mr. Monteith said the time wasn't right to raise taxes. There were signs of the economy tapering off, of a slowdown ahead. The higher taxes would be another brake on the economy.

People were deep in debt and there was a danger that the demand in the consumer sector could not be maintained.

Colin Cameron, NDP financial critic and MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, said the budget was unnecessary, ill-conceived and incompetent.

He told reporters after the budget speech that Mr. Sharp should simply have scrapped the present $120 ceiling on personal income tax payments for the old age security fund, instead of just raising it to $240.

If there was no ceiling, the rich would pay heavily, and the tax would yield $230,000,000—almost all that Mr. Sharp required. Mr. Sharp did not need to raise taxes at all to pay for the old age supplements.

The old age security fund totalled $400,000,000 and was likely to stay in the black in 1967. By then, the government would be reviving tax schedules generally in line with recommendations in the forthcoming report of the Carter royal commission on taxation.

Mr. Cameron said he cannot see how the finance minister expects to obtain $185,000,000 from the one-per-cent rate boost, "in view of the narrow base on which the tax is levied."

Mr. Sharp apparently "wants to create an antipathy in the public mind" for any further increases in social security payments by tying tax increases directly to them.

Three Classes In Table Form

OTTAWA (CP)—The following tables illustrate the effect on three classes of taxpayers of Finance Minister Sharp's increase in the old age security tax.

In each table the columns of figures show:

First, total income.

Second, present old age security tax.

Third, new old age security tax.

Fourth, increase in old age security tax.

Fifth, combined old age security, federal and provincial income tax for 1967 after the proposed change. The combined rates shown apply to all provinces except Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. In all cases, it is assumed the taxpayer takes the optional standard deduction of $100 in lieu of a deduction for charitable donations and unusual medical expenses.

'Snooper Legislation' Scored by Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Monday the Liberal government has a "civil service mentality" that is more interested in administrative efficiency than in individual freedom.

He called a provision in the guaranteed annual income bill "the widest possible snooper legislation" ever brought before Parliament. It would allow health department officers to check a person's income tax to determine whether the taxpayer qualifies for supplementary old age pension payments.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that the revenue department would not permit such examination of North American General Insurance Co. tax returns when questions were raised about it.

"Twenty thousand policyholders got skinned because the government wouldn't act," he said, referring to the financial collapse of the company.

In the case of North American, the government "stood by the letter" of the law prohibiting examination of income tax returns by anyone except the revenue department.

"Why are you making a difference with the aged?" he asked after warning Health Minister MacEachen the guaranteed annual income bill will be held up until he gets some answers.

The bill now has been debated seven days in the Commons and government spokesmen have complained of opposition filibustering.

The opposition would permit payment of up to $30 a month to needy members of the $73-a-month old age pension. For every $2 a month income above the $73 a month, the income supplement would be reduced $1 a month.

Mr. Diefenbaker also demanded that Mr. MacEachen explain how he expects the income supplement will work if Quebec carries out its intention of taking over payment of old age pensions from the federal government.

NOTION DEFEATED

On a standing vote, the Commons defeated by 62 to 31 a move made last week by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg—North Centre) to kill the powers in the bill allowing health department officers access to income tax returns.

Mr. MacEachen said income mediate consideration and I am confident that the resumption of such negotiations will result in an agreement," Mr. Goldenberg said.

The mediation, set up by Parliament Sept. 1 in the legislation that ended the national railway strike, was completed Saturday night right on the deadline.

Three union groups representing about 100,000 workers accepted a basic wage increase of 24 per cent over three years. This adds six per cent in the final year to the 18-per-cent increase over two years awarded in the strike-halting bill.

Mr. Nicholson paid tribute in the Commons to Mr. Goldenberg's work.

There was applause from both sides of the chamber when Mr. Nicholson expressed the appreciation of the government and the nation for "a job well done."

Mr. Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer who specializes in labor relations work, was seated in the Commons gallery.

No Arbitration For Railways

OTTAWA (CP) — Mediator Carl Goldenberg has advised Labor Minister Nicholson that a wage settlement is likely between the railways and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers and there will be no need for compulsory arbitration.

The CBRT, representing 30,000 non-operating railway workers mainly on the CNR, is the only one of four union groups that did not accept terms worked out in mediation by Mr. Goldenberg.

However, Mr. Goldenberg's report tabled in the Commons Monday says the CBRT likely will resume direct negotiations with the railways as the result of urging by the mediator.

"I am advised that my recommendation will receive immediate consideration and I am confident that the resumption of such negotiations will result in an agreement," Mr. Goldenberg said.

Hellyer Replies Flayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer was accused of bombastic replies Monday during a sharp exchange in the Commons with Conservative defence critic Gordon Churchill.

Mr. Churchill asked whether Canada has reduced its naval commitment to NATO in view of a "serious reduction" in navy personnel and ships.

'NEVER HIGHER'

The minister said there have been no changes in the NATO commitment and the navy expects to have all its postwar destroyer escorts fully manned next summer. Its anti-sub capability had never been higher.

Mr. Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre, then complained of bombastic replies by the minister. He wanted to know what was being done now, not next summer.

RESERVE RAISES

Mr. Hellyer said his department is seeking a more realistic co-ordination between the reserve and active forces.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) asked whether a decision has been reached on a pay increase for the reserve forces.

The minister said the question is under review.

Big Losses May Mean Bus Switch

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro director Einar Gunderson says the provincial utility will dump its transit system on lower mainland municipalities if its losses become excessive.

Mr. Gunderson said in an interview the Hydro will carry on operating the transit system as long as arrangements are satisfactory and losses aren't too great.

He estimated the bus system in Vancouver lost $2,300,000 this year but would not give a definite figure on what he considers excessive losses.

Real Interest Cost May Give Pause

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Few people who buy cars, appliances, or indeed anything else on credit really know just how much it is costing them in interest and the other charges which lenders manage to write into the agreement.

Even those temples of moral rectitude, the chartered banks, have ways and means of increasing their legal six per cent interest ceiling to something more like 10 per cent when it comes to making personal, or consumer, loans to their customers.

This, of course, is modest in comparison to the overall charges made by some lenders.

Borrowers, Too

But what can you expect when finance companies are themselves borrowing from depositors at rates varying between six and seven per cent? In any case, the assurance by Finance Minister Sharp that he will go along with the provinces in an effort to compel all consumer credit providers to state the actual percentage of the charge they are making on their money, will be generally welcomed as a "clean up" measure if nothing else.

If people find they are paying something around 20 per cent, it may make them think twice before making a deal. On the other hand it might not.

Business activity in Victoria appears to be easing off slightly according to figures by the Canadian Bankers Association.

In November, the debits to individual accounts at the Victoria district branches of the chartered banks amounted to $386,000,000, or nearly four per cent less than the $401,200,000 of the corresponding month in 1965.

Only twice before this year has the 1966 monthly total been below that of the corresponding month a year ago.

"The drop is a small one and its significance is not yet quite clear," said one local banker. "There still seems to be considerable spending money around, but people are becoming more careful."

He added that lay-offs in the lumber industry were beginning to hit over a fairly wide field. Industries that supply to the forest operations are being hurt, and the trend is not expected to improve before early spring.

DOLLARS SPREAD

Leading Victoria stores report good business for Christmas but they note that recent newcomers to the retail business have spread the dollars around so that few merchants will be going as well as they did a year ago.

Despite this, the 1966 11-month total of bank debits is already a new record for a full year. The 11-month total of $4,410,200,000, compared with $4,324,100,000 for the 12 months of 1965. The December figures are likely to bring the 1966 total to near the $5,000,000 mark.

Net asset value of the shares of Argus Corporation at Nov. 30 were $14.82, down 25 per cent from the $19.55 valuation of a year earlier.

Annual report of the big E. P. Taylor holding company shows that although the market value of the holdings had dropped during the year, the net profit had risen by 13 per cent to $7,307,143 from $6,480,099 a year ago.

During the year Argus increased its holding in Hanger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. by 100,000 shares and in Massey Ferguson by 330,000 shares.

The 76-year-old Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company has changed its name by Act of Parliament to Century Insurance Company of Canada.

The change was made because the company now does business across Canada and in Britain and the United States as well as on the Pacific Coast.

It was the first insurance company to establish in B.C. and came into being in 1890 four years after the great fire of Vancouver.

The offer by Inspiration Ltd., a subsidiary of Power Corporation of Canada, to purchase all the outstanding "A" and "B" shares of Boyles Drilling Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, has been accepted by 87 per cent of the holders of the "A" shares and by 96 per cent of the holders of the "B" shares.

The offer is now binding and Inspiration will forward the necessary cash and promissory notes within the next few days. The offer to the remaining shareholders remains open until Dec. 31.

Steering Shafts On Pontiacs Back for Check

DETROIT (AP)—More than 16,000 new cars in three Pontiac lines are being checked for possible misaligned steering shafts, the General Motors Pontiac Division announced Monday.

Misalignment could cause abnormal stress on the steering shaft, causing it to break if the

The division said it was notifying owners of 1967 model Tempest, LeMans and GTO automobiles produced before Oct. 18 at the division's home assembly plant to return the vehicles to dealers for inspection.

The number of cars involved, including those still in dealer inventory, is 16,245, Pontiac said.

The misalignment in some of the cars came about in the assembly line process, which was changed in mid-October, the division said.

The announcement marked the first GM division recall of 1967-model cars. The other three U.S. auto-makers have already announced recalls to correct suspected flaws in 1967 cars.

At Oshawa, Ont., a spokesman for General Motors of Canada Ltd. said Monday only 53 cars of more than 16,000 being recalled by its parent company in the United States for possible steering-shaft defects were imported into Canada.

Postal Bill Passes

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate approved in principle Monday a bill to provide relief, mainly in patent cases, against hardship suffered through interruptions of normal postal service.

The retroactive bill, which now goes to a committee for study, refers specifically to losses suffered as a result of a wildcat postal strike in the summer of 1966.

However, it is drafted to allow recourse to an Exchequer Court as a result of any postal interruption of more than 48 hours.

MP Would Air Warning Notes

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democrat David Orlowski will ask the federal government to make public letters between their officials and William Gruber, the Toronto accountant who gave pre-collapse warning that something was amiss with Prudential Finance Corp.

The Commons order paper Monday carried notice that the Winnipeg North member will ask for the papers Wednesday, the day set aside for motions for production of documents.

Mr. Orlowski's notice of motion asks for all correspondence between federal finance and insurance officials and Mr. Gruber on the Prudential case since Jan. 1, 1964.

Bankruptcy of Prudential Finance and four subsidiaries including three insurance firms has sparked opposition queries in the Commons as to why federal authorities took no action to protect investors.

Mr. Gruber, formerly employed by auditors for the Prudential group, tipped off the government last January about Prudential financial difficulties.

Sharp Opens Door

Government Ready to Pass Interest Disclosure Law

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp told provincial government officials Monday the federal government is willing to pass legislation to assure disclosure of interest rates on consumer credit.

He gave the commitment at the opening of the federal-provincial conference on consumer credit and interest disclosure.

In this field, Mr. Sharp said, the federal government is willing to co-operate with the provinces to assure uniformity of action. The senior government is ready to keep its own house in order "or, if requested by provinces, in backing provincial legislation with our own."

30 PER CENT

Mr. Sharp hoped the banks, which handle about 30 per cent of all consumer credit, would lead the way in practising rate disclosure on consumer installment lending under pending legislation. This would lead to "swift progress" on rate disclosure on personal lending by other institutions.

Aircraft Swayed Crashed

BOGOTA, Columbia (AP) — As "people started to scream and call for their children," a Colombian airliner crashed short of the runway while landing at Bogota in heavy fog Sunday, killing 15 persons and injuring 10.

Aerocordor Air Lines said the crash took the lives of nine Americans from Florida, five Colombians living in the United States and four other Colombians.

The airline said in Miami, Fla., where the flight began, that the Super-Constellation carried 51 passengers and six crew members.

DESPITE FOG

One of the survivors, Kay Tuttle, 23, of Crestline, Ohio, said passengers were told as they neared Eldorado Airport that the plane would land despite thickening fog.

She said the plane struck what she believed was dirt and swayed wildly from side to side.

"The people started to scream and call for their children and the plane went into total darkness," Miss Tuttle said. The aircraft "seemed to break in two and many people were able to escape. I jumped out through an emergency exit."

She broke a leg. "If the plane had caught fire we all would have been killed," she added.

It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky: how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?

If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can conceal the label but you can't disguise the flavour.

It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour that dyed-in-the-wool whisky drinkers love.

Playoff Bowl Contestants Colts, Eagles

All that remained to be decided at the team level in the National Football League in Sunday's schedule-enders were which clubs would meet in the Playoff Bowl in Miami on Jan. 5.

Two clubs in the Eastern Conference and three in the Western Conference all had chances. The two that made were the Philadelphia Eagles and the Baltimore Colts, in Eastern club which plays in the Western Conference.

Eagles made the post-season game for the conference runners-up by outscoring Washington Redskins, 37-23.

It gave the Philadelphia club a second-place tie with Cleveland Browns but the Eagles get the game because the Browns have more recently played in it.

In the Western Conference, the Colts had to defeat the San Francisco 49ers and have the Green Bay Packers defeat Los Angeles Rams for the chance to meet the Eagles. The 49ers could have made it by defeating the Colts if the Rams, who were in if they won, lost.

Packers, with reserve-quarterback Zeke Bratlow going all the way and passing well, just made it, 27-23, against the Rams, who got two late touchdowns to go with three early field goals by Bruce Gossett.

In San Francisco in a stormy game which saw head-lineman Gerard Bergman struck twice on the head with whisky bottles thrown by irate fans, John Unites passed the Colts to a 30-14 win.

Unites threw four touchdown passes and linebacker Denny Gaubatz intercepted one pass and recovered two fumbles.

In Chicago, Gayle Sayers became the first halfback to win the NFL rushing title since Steve Van Buren did it in 1949. Sayers, who also had a 90-yard kickoff return, would up with 1,231 yards for the season.

The Bills beat the Broncos 38-21 Sunday, the day after the Patriots were upset 38-23 by New York Jets. If the Patriots had won or tied, the crown would have been theirs.

Now the Bills will be hosts to Kansas City Chiefs in the AFL championship game Jan. 15, and a victory there will be worth at least $15,000 a man.

Buffalo gained the Eastern title with the help of Denver mistakes. Tom Janik intercepted two passes, the first setting up Booth Lesteg's 16-yard field goal and the second resulting in a 25-yard touchdown for him. Then Mike Stratton grabbed a fumble and raced 22 yards for another score.

Buffalo Bills are champions of the American Football League Eastern Division for the third straight year, thanks to mistakes by Denver Broncos and a loss by Boston Patriots.

Canada's Paul Conlin stops progress of Russian

Canadians Have Way to Go Before World Puck Tourney

MOSCOW 2, CANADA 8

Burgeoning hopes that Canada's national hockey team is about ready to bring the world amateur championship back to this country didn't quite shoot higher last night at Memorial Arena although the Moscow Selects were dumped, this time 5-2, for the second time in as many days.

The Selects, a young club averaging less than 23 years of age, may some day provide many of the players for Russia's national team but they are now no better than probably the third best club Russia can assemble and the Canadians will have to be better than they were last night if they are to prevail at next spring's world tournament.

NOT AS IMPRESSIVE

Although clearly the better club except for the first part of the third period, the Nationals didn't impress as they did here a year ago when they walloped the No. 1 Russian club, 6-1. They made too many mistakes on defence, although Carl Brewer was a shining light, their power play was mostly ineffectual although it did produce two goals and they failed to take full advantage of their scoring opportunities.

SOME FLASHES

However, there was enough there in flashes to retain the thought that this club can do it next spring.

Brewer, playing only his second game after being out of hockey for more than a season, set up his club's first goal, scored the fourth and it was noticeable that the Nationals were at their best when he was on the ice. When he is in top condition his addition to the club is going to make an even bigger difference.

TWO MISSING

And it will make another difference when centre Roger Bourbonnais and defenceman Gary Begg return to action. Bourbonnais was away last night writing exams and Begg is on the injured list.

Coach Jackie McLeod also hopes to have an experienced rightwinger for the world tournament in Addie Tambellini of the Trail Smoke Eaters.

Last night, the Nationals had the flashy Fran Huck, looking better than ever, Marshall Johnston and Jean Cusson, skating with anyone on the ice, joining Brewer in standout performances.

The Selects, young and strong and willing to body but not knowing how to do it effectively, scored within 10 seconds when a flip shot by Georgi Chichurin evaded Wayne Stephenson.

Then they got a chance to add to their lead when Barry MacKenzie and Terry O'Malley drew penalties 22 seconds apart. But Brewer and Paul Conlin, with alternating help from Johnston and Huck, held out although Chichurin missed a second goal when his hard shot hit the piping.

NATS-SHORTHANDED

With the penalties killed off, the Nationals went on the attack and the Selects drew penalties 23 seconds apart under pressure. Johnston squared matters, knocking the puck down with his glove in front of Vladimir Chichurin and stashing it in a huge opening.

Bill MacMillan put the Nationals ahead to stay early in the second period by cashing the rebound after a shot from the left side and Huck scored the first of his two goals just over two minutes later with the Selects playing shorthanded.

Then Brewer planted a sizzling slap shot behind Chichurin for a 4-1 lead for the third period. It looked for a while in the third period as if it might not be enough.

The Selects came with their best effort of the evening and Anatoli Motovilov finished off two minutes of pressure with a first-dimer that left Stephenson with no chance.

But the surge ended there. Huck put it out of reach at 11:55, and both clubs seemed to tire in the last 10 minutes.

Brewer Impresses Russians

Nats Rough Play Rapped

By BRIAN DOHERTY

A square-jawed, powerfully-built Russian ice hockey coach took a swing Monday at Canada's national team, accusing them of "unnecessary rough play."

The rockets came at a press conference where the Russians presented their views on hockey frankly and with occasional flashes of humor.

Coach Anatoly Kostukov

begin by discussing the national's new recruit, defenceman Carl Brewer.

Brewer, he said, played very good, very good ice hockey Sunday when the nationals beat the Moscow Selects 7-3.

"In my opinion, Brewer is a magnificent hockey player of high class," Kostukov said. "He played very good; very good body checking but too rough."

(Brewer wasn't penalized in Sunday's game and said afterwards, "I'm not a dirty player, just very much misunderstood at times.")

From Brewer, Kostukov moved onto another National Hockey League veteran, Jack Bownass.

"It is my opinion that this (national) team is stronger than last year's."

The answer for this was the presence of Brewer and Bownass.

"They give a very reliable strength, a backbone to the team. The rest of the team knows the defence is in sure hands. This team is stronger than before."

And then the conversation moved toward rough play.

"The Canadians could do away with rough play," Kostukov said. "They could have played much better (Sunday) if they did away with unnecessary rough play."

An attending newsman told the Russians there was a feeling among the Canadian players after Sunday's game that the Russians were rough in the first period.

The remark was translated and the Russians smiled broadly.

"The situation was the reverse," was the reply.

NOT DISGUISED

The Canadians erred in their stick-handling, the coach said, and they slashed. The Russian players do not do this.

"Some Canadians frankly tried to push Russian players without trying to disguise it," he said. "They should have at least tried to disguise it."

He cited an example of how a Canadian player struck a Russian in the face Sunday with his hand.

Kostukov was asked why the Russians got called for more penalties Sunday than the nationals if the Russians didn't play rough and the Canadians didn't disguise their roughness.

He replied with the suggestion that all visiting coaches and managers made at some time:

"The organizers should have invited a neutral referee."

"The Canadians are always the roughest in all major tournaments," Kostukov said. "We are not against good body checking, we are against dirty play on the field (sic)."

Coach Kostukov saw a game of professional hockey in Canada in 1960.

His impressions were that he liked the courage of the players but didn't like the constant roughness and the constant fighting on the ice.

FIRST TEAM BETTER

The conversation returned to quieter subjects.

The Selects is basically a team combining experience with youth. The Russian first national team is much better than the Selects.

Perhaps three of the Selects would be good enough to make the Russian No. 1 team for the world championships in Vienna.

Coach Kostukov was asked for his opinion on Canada's chances at the championships.

"Canada has a good chance... with Brewer and Bownass."

How would the Canadians fare against Russia's first team?

More broad smiles and joking in Russian.

"That is a very good question... they would be about equal."

A pleasant press conference closed.

victories, expect to be at something closer to full strength tonight in Los Angeles.

Back in the Western Hockey League playoff picture despite having Bill Shvets and Bob Barlow join Fred Hucul and Larry Keenan on the list of incapacitated, and Sandy Hucul, Aut Erickson and Claude Labrosse pursuing various ailments, the Leafs hope to have Barlow and Shvets ready for tonight's game.

Victory tonight will mean at least a tie for fourth place and it could create a four-way tie for third place if San Diego Gulls co-operate by outscoring Seattle Totems in tonight's other game.

FINISH WEDNESDAY

The Leafs conclude their second five-game trip in Portland on Wednesday night and return home for a game against Vancouver Canucks on Christmas Eve.

On Sunday, the Totems produced two third-period goals to edge Vancouver Canucks, 2-1, and Oakland Seals ended a winless six-game tour of the Northern part of the league by gaining a 3-3 tie with the leading Portland Buckaroos.

A 40-foot shot by defenceman Jean Gauthier broke a 1-1 tie late in the game in Seattle. Tom Thurlby earned the point for the Seals when he scored 59 seconds from time with his club using six attackers.

Gorge held Kickers scoreless for the first 45 minutes but Gunter Beyer, Henry Vanderhorst and Otto Osage scored in the second frame to pace the victory.

Red Lions entered the day tied with Kickers but ended up in third place behind Canadian Scottish who defeated them, 2-1, at Heywood Avenue Park.

The Lions have been a hot and cold team all year but Scottish played constructive soccer and were well worth the win. Ron Stubbings and John Rostrom scored from goal-mouth scrambles for the winners and Gil McIlraith scored for Red Lion.

In the only other first division game played, Victoria West balanced their season's record by edging Luckies, 3-2, at Topaz Park.

Gomez Boots Home Three

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Cuban jockey Avelino Gomez rode three winners Saturday to increase his lead for the North American riding championship.

Gomez, who rides out of Toronto, now has 317 winners for 1966. His closest opponent is Braulio Baeza, a Panamanian, who has 296. Another Panamanian, 19-year-old Jorge Velasquez, has 289.

Straightening Out Next for Davey

TORONTO (CP)—Senator Keith Davey, chairman-elect of the Canadian Football League, has been criticized for what was described as "premature statements" about the state of Canadian professional football.

Davey, who assumes his post Jan. 3, gave his opinions on how he plans to improve Canadian football, including game equalization, more offence and better CBC television coverage, in the Globe Magazine Saturday.

John Bassett, chairman of Toronto Argonauts board of directors, said Saturday night: "Be prepared for a press conference. We've got to straighten that young man out on a few things."

Sam Berger, president of the Ottawa Rough Riders club, said: "I would have to say that, generally speaking, I wouldn't consider it the better part of wisdom to criticize your employer's record before starting the job."

Rangers Share League Lead

Wings Show Signs of Life

Detroit Red Wings may be last on the move.

Hampered mostly all season by problems on defence following the retirement of Bill Gadsby and the injury which ended the career of Doug Barkley, the Wings have been perfect in their last two games on defence with successive shutouts.

SECOND STRAIGHT Sunday night at home, Roger Crozier got his second straight shutout behind a sound defence led by veteran Leo Bolvin and youngster Bert Marshall.

Beaten, 5-0, were the New York Rangers.

Crozier had to handle only 22 shots but had to be brilliant on several to earn his fourth blanking of the season.

Alex Delvecchio and Bruce MacGregor each scored twice and Floyd Smith connected for the first time in 17 games.

BREAK SLUMP

However, Boston Bruins kept the Wings still in the basement by defeating Montreal Canadiens, 3-1, for their first victory in 11 games.

Canadiens, who have been winless in their last four games after making a strong move earlier in the month, got the first goal but couldn't hold on in a bickering affair which brought two major penalties and three misconducts.

MCKENZIE HERO

John McKenzie, who drew two two minor penalties, a major and a misconduct in the first two periods, broke a 1-1 tie in the third period and Ron Schock added an insurance goal seven minutes later.

Anthem for Birthday Year-End Highlight

OTTAWA (CP) — Year-end celebrations on Parliament Hill Dec. 31 will be climaxed by the first public performance of the official anthem for Canada's centennial celebrations.

The anthem, commissioned by the Canadian Interfaith Council, will be sung to the accompaniment of the Peach Tower carillon.

The council, a gathering of 32 religious groups sponsored by the national centennial commission, chose Dr. Healy Willan to write the music.

Robert Choquette wrote the French words and John Glasco of Foster, Que., the English words.

Dr. Willan, 86, is Canada's most noted composer and has written more than 200 works. Mr. Choquette is an author of radio and TV plays and Canada's consul-general at Bordeaux, France.

The lighting of the Fires of Friendship flame — announcing the start of a year of celebration of Canada's 100th birthday — will be coincidental with the singing of the anthem.

Following is the full text of the anthem:

"Glory to Thee, Creator, Praise and adoration

For this dear land so favored by Thy loving-kindness:

See, all her hills, her lakes, her plains and river-ways, See, all her mighty forests filled with Thy creation.

See, all the endless treasures hidden in her bosom! Receive, O Lord, our song of praise.

Her glowing future is our own.

"Hail to the future! See, the spark of tomorrow
Born of our brave ambition — and its daring story
Told in our cities' ardent leap toward the skies!

Yet give us, Lord, the vision of a greater glory.

Bach Oratorio Triumph For Orchestra, Singers

By WILLIAM THOMAS

The Victoria Symphony Society's offering of the Bach Christmas Oratorio was a minor triumph Monday.

Everything worked perfectly and with a minor reservation or two about the sound system set aside, this must rank as the best concert of the season.

There seems to be an infectious enthusiasm for Bach in this city.

Ors-Werner Mueller had the Victoria Choral Society firmly in control and there can be no doubt that Rodney Webster has done a magnificent job in training this ensemble.

GREAT STRENGTH

There was great strength in the orchestra and also in the accompanists. Robin Wood was flawless on the harpsichord, while Richard Proudman provided a fine organ background. The soloists got a most quite sensitive support from cellist Hans Siegrist, who provided continuo throughout all the arias. His contribution certainly did not go unnoticed.

It was always a delight to be able to praise a local artist, and baritone Stanley Martin offers an opportunity now.

He has a warm feeling for oratorio and not only sings well but seems to communicate the spirit of the music.

Tenor Robert Peters offered a precise interpretation of the Evangelist but it did not carry the empathy that Mr. Martin produced. Audrey Glass was hampered a trifle by the sound system but carried her role with sensitivity.

Derek MacDermot was also hampered by the microphone placement problem, but he produced a satisfying sound, especially in his duet with Sheila Marks.

The Bach music is demanding and it was well played. Trumpeter David Fisher deserves special mention. After a few minor difficulties in the first section he settled down to play magnificently. The same is true of flutist Jan Menting.

PERFECT SOLO

His solo in the second movement with Robert Peters was perfect.

The chorus sang with a vigor and enthusiasm that I have not heard since Albert Hall days.

To open the second movement the symphony played the Bach Pastoral Symphony. This offering proves again that we have a first-class chamber orchestra.

The only thing the Monday concert at the Royal Theatre lacked was an audience. There were fewer than 700 people at the concert by my rough count.

Strike on Two Dailies Threatens P.E.I. Capital

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — This capital city of Prince Edward Island may be without its daily newspapers after Saturday, Dec. 24, if the Charlottetown Typographical Union (Ind.), Local 963 calls a threatened strike against the morning Guardian and evening Patriot. M. Allison Croken, union president, said Monday a strike can be called legally anytime after Saturday midnight although no time has been set yet.

War on the Critics Cool in London Hot in New York

From AP, UPI

The war on theatre critics is warming up in New York but has cooled down — a bit — in London.

These items have spiced the Broadway season:

● Producer David Merrick has banned two TV-radio commentators and two press critics.

● Various critics have found themselves barred from premises in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington on grounds of being incompetent, dull, late or maybe all three.

● Leading producers and playwrights in augmented force have been sounding off about the breed as "puny" or "twereps" or "threats to culture."

● Some critics have taken to bluntly criticizing colleagues, and a TV man snarled at the New York Drama Critics Circle for not admitting broadcast reviewers.

● Most significant and potentially important, both the U.S. government's National Endowment for the Arts and the privately-financed Twentieth Century Fund have launched studies of critical standards in drama and all the other arts.

In London, the war between theatre critics and the writers and directors of plays boiled up anew when critics roasted A. B. C. D. Honored, a turgid, complex one-act drama by John Osborne.

THEM AND US

In a reply worthy of his angry young man in Look Back in Anger, Osborne divided the theatrical world into Them and Us.

"By them," he elaborated unnecessarily, "I mean the self-knowledge enemy, the critics."

Iraqi Leader Could Fall Over Syrian Oil Dispute

BAGHDAD (Reuters) — Informed sources predicted here Syria's dispute with the Iraq Petroleum Co. could lead to the collapse of the government of Prime Minister Najib Taleb of Iraq.

Sources close to President Abdul-Rahman Arif said the president, who has never been on very good terms with the prime minister, feels that Taleb was over-hasty about supporting Syria in the dispute.

Before the dispute, the bulk of the oil from the petroleum company's fields in northern Iraq was pumped across Syria to the Baniyas Mediterranean terminal in Syria and to Lebanon's Tripoli terminal. The flow of oil stopped this week when Syria, demanding increased transit royalties from the internationally-owned company, seized the pipeline and installations on its territory.

The sources said Arif maintains that, though he was advised Syria might seize company assets within its borders, he was not informed that the oil flow could stop completely.

He also was reported as saying that Taleb misinformed him about the company's economic strength and that far from collapsing in a matter of days, the company could possibly outlast both Syria and Iraq in an endurance test.

ANTI-SYRIAN

They said Arif is unlikely to dismiss Taleb because such a move may be interpreted as an anti-Syrian gesture, but he might seek the resignation of the prime minister.

Iraq stands to lose an estimated $3,000,000 for the last quarter of this year. Unless the crisis is resolved early in the new year, the government might not have enough money to pay its employees.

The Associated Press said in a dispatch from Beirut, Lebanon, the dispute threatens about 70 per cent of Iraq's $364,000,000 yearly oil revenue.

Iraq is reported to have a $140,000,000 budgetary deficit for the current fiscal year.

Iraq has the choice of nationalizing its oil industry or supporting the company or supporting Syria.

Nationalization would present the problem of marketing the oil and supporting Syria would threaten Iraq with the loss of most of its oil income. Supporting the company would brand Iraq a traitor in Arab eyes.

White Christmas For Holy Land?

JERUSALEM (AP) — Heavy rains have soaked the Holy Land in the last few days and a white Christmas can be expected in Galilee and the hills of Judea and Bethlehem, weather experts forecast Monday.

Israeli officials are preparing for thousands of visitors who will be crossing the border into Jordan to visit the holy places during the festive season.

First will be 6,000 Protestants and Roman Catholics who will go through Mandelbaum Gate Friday.

Reds Launch Sputnik

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Monday launched Cosmos 136 in its years-long space research program to pave the way for manned flights to the moon and the planets beyond, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The launch of the unmanned Sputnik coincided with reports from Prague that the Soviet manned space program has been slowed down because of economic reasons. Reports said the economy wave came after the ouster of ex-premier Nikita Khrushchev and effected every branch of the Soviet economy, including the Soviet space program.

South Africans Portuguese To Carry On?

By NEIL SMITH

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Authoritative sources believe the United Nations failure to back mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia with force means South Africa can continue "normal trade relations" with the rebel regime without risking a head-on clash.

The assessment came as the focus of attempts to resolve the Rhodesian crisis shifted from UN headquarters in New York to South Africa — which, with Portugal, holds the key to success of the UN sanctions order.

The question was whether South Africa and Portugal, through its neighboring Mozambique province, will defy the United Nations and continue to do business as usual with the white-minority regime of Rhodesian Prime Minister Smith.

CHIEF NEED

Smith declared Rhodesia's independence more than a year ago after talks with Britain broke down over the future role of the black African majority in the colony. There are about 4,500,000 black Africans compared to some 220,000 whites. The imports Rhodesia needs most are petroleum fuels, and it is in this area that South Africa is expected to help. Experts in London calculate that a small fraction of South Africa's annual consumption of oil and gasoline could satisfy Rhodesian petroleum needs for a year.

South Africa has been reported stockpiling oil supplies sufficient to last for at least a year even if a full blockade were ordered.

There was no official South African government comment.

Premier Vorster was vacationing at Oubosstrand, near Port Elizabeth. Foreign Minister Muller also was on holiday and unavailable for comment.

Vorster declared on Dec. 7 that South Africa believes "sanctions do not offer a solution for any problem and that we as a matter of principle could not take part in it out of our own free will or under compulsion."

He added then, "This is and remains government policy."

What we put into Gooderham's 1832 would take 134 years to explain.

Our founder, William Gooderham, was then grinding grain in a windmill and putting forth his decree on how to mature whisky.

Thus, with 134 years of experience, we finally made Gooderham's 1832, a mellow and unusually light blend of several fine Canadian whiskies.

We spent considerable time with it. But it was time well spent.

Trace of Rain Didn't Fall In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The weatherman advised Vancouverites Monday to not start building an ark... yet. A clerical error, he said, put the record rains at 39 days Monday and not 40 — similar to the Biblical flood. It appeared that someone at the weather office marked down a trace of rain for Nov. 10 when in fact there was none.

The continuous downpour began Nov. 11 and one wag commented that it's only rained twice in Vancouver — but only stopped once.

The record fall amounted to more than seven inches so far this month alone and more than 14 inches since the sky opened.

There was brief respite Monday when Vancouver came out from under a black cloud for a few hours and shafts of sunshine appeared.

But the weatherman predicted more rain, mostly showers.

The deluge has resulted in widespread flooding of basements in Greater Vancouver.

Same Old Thing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The skies over Vancouver just show no respect at all for the seasons.

The overnight low on Sunday was 18 degrees above — as a heavy, warm rain fell steadily.

It was the same on July 5 and the same last Jan. 5 — 48 above and raining.

Saanich Buys Gorge Park For $49,200

Victoria has sold Gorge Park to Saanich for $49,200.

"The sale of Gorge Park has been concluded," Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis told municipal council Monday night with obvious relief.

He said city officials would hand over title to the park officially by Jan. 28, 1967.

FIRST TIME

Later, Coun. Ed Lum, parks chairman, said it marked the first time in Victoria's history that the city has sold parkland to the municipality.

Included in the $49,200 amount was $35,700 for approximately three-quarters of an acre to be used by Saanich as a road allowance to accommodate a wider bridge over the Gorge, and nine acres of parkland at $1,500 an acre.

CALL TENDERS

Coun. Lum said tenders had been called for the bridge construction and the construction itself was expected to begin "very early in the new year."

He said Saanich municipality also expected to spend $18,000 in the next two years developing the park grounds.

PICNIC AREAS

He listed picnic areas, water-side paths, reseeding of almost the entire area, and smoothing the grounds as necessities.

He said lack of development in recent years had caused the park to return to wilderness.

They Had Dickens Of Time

Top hats, monocles and tea and crumpets were "in" early Monday morning in Oak Bay, when the area turned back the clock to the Dickens era.

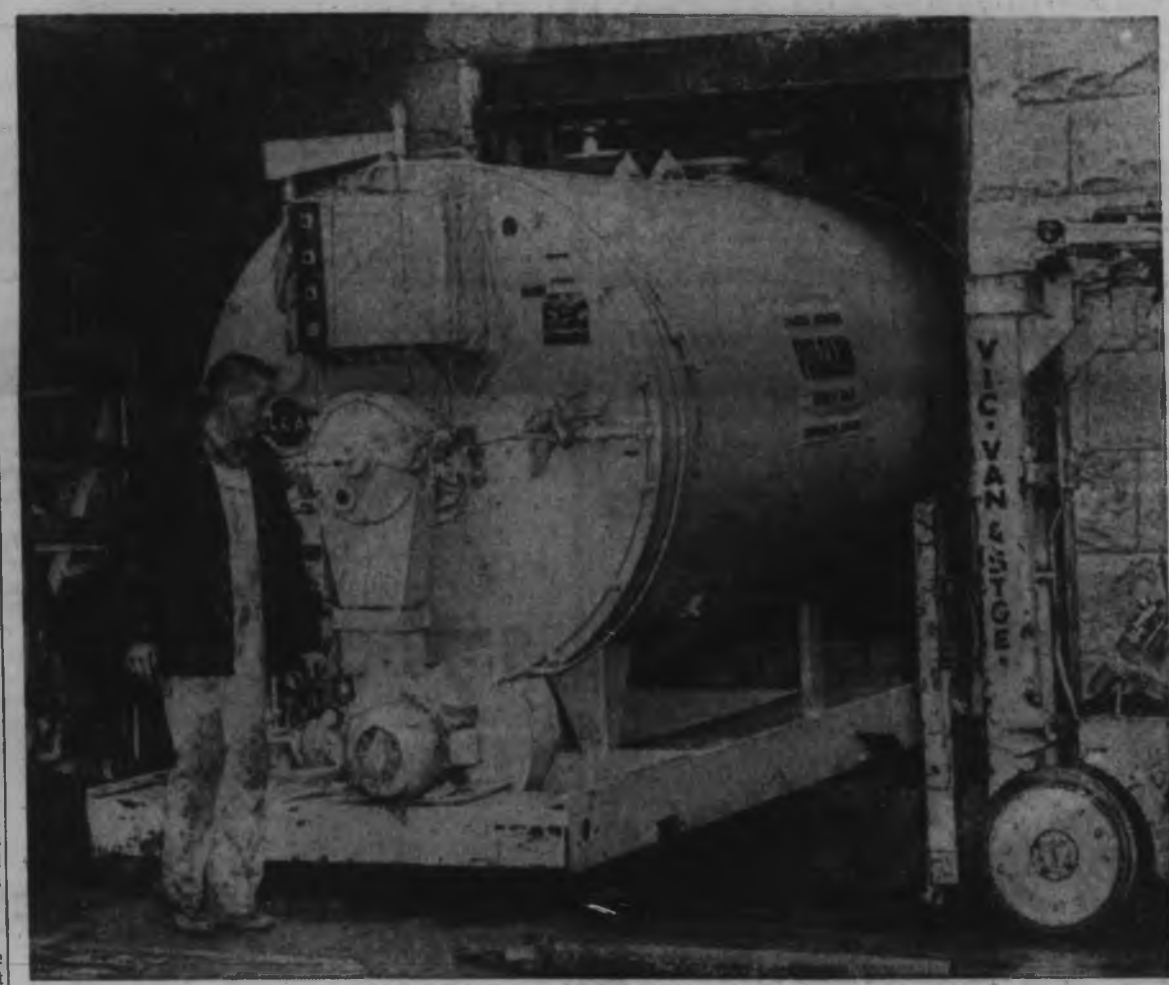

The idea of producing a true English Christmas spirit has been revived, after a five-year lapse, by the Oak Bay Board of Trade.

Customers of Oak Bay businesses may be a little surprised today when they are served by assistants dressed in false and real whiskers and sideburns, or long skirts and bonnets.

Old Smoky Yielding...

Familiar landmark in downtown Victoria will become thing of past soon when big smoke stack and steam building, above, are phased out of Empress Hotel operations. With switch of hotel to Hydro power and installation of steam plant in hotel proper, building will be unnecessary. Hotel's laundry will be done by contract, instead of in its own building, leaving valuable downtown corner open for development. Below, one of the two new 250-horsepower boilers that will supply the heat for hotel's 270 rooms. —(William Boucher)

...To Modern Methods

City Had Undercover Man—Chief

Speaker Lifted Police Mask

City police had an undercover man hunting for stolen goods, but "a man giving a speech on the street ruined that," Police Chief J. F. Gregory told city police commission Monday.

He was replying to Commissioner Gordon Carter's suggestion that some such system might be used. Commissioners

Carter had noted the chief's October figures on stolen goods recovered, and observed that a stream of stolen property must be leaving Victoria.

The chief's report showed that the value of property reported stolen in October totalled $10,864, and stolen goods recovered totalled $1,135.

Chief Gregory said that over a period of months the balance was much closer than the top-sided picture presented by the October report. Sometimes the value of property recovered was greater than that of stolen property.

Asked by Commissioner Carter if an undercover operative might trace the property, Chief Gregory replied, "We had an undercover man, but a man giving a speech on the street ruined that."

WANTS TO KNOW
Pawmbroker W. A. Scott, candidate in the recent aldermanic election, said Monday night, "I want to know whom the chief is talking about. I'm the only one who made a speech, in Centennial Square."

Mr. Scott's campaign concentrated on police operations.

Victoria police do not anticipate any trouble from New Year's Eve parties, Chief Gregory told the commission.

HOW LONG?
In answer to a query from Saanich police department about how long public parties should be allowed to go on into the morning of Sunday, Jan. 1, the chief wrote back to say that his department did not expect to receive any complaints. Attorney-General Bonner had suggested that complaints were not going to be enthusiastically received.

A suggestion about traffic control, received from Capt. W. H. Humphries, 4107 Holland was ordered passed along to the department's traffic division.

Capt. Humphries suggested that a number of men with known good driving records be recruited to assist in the apprehension of careless drivers or speed merchants. Such men would complain to the police department by telephone.

After a number of such complaints, the driver would be called in to the police station and given a warning.

CIRCUS SHOW
The commission gave the police department permission to officially sponsor a children's circus in May, 1967.

Commissioners were told that it would be held by the Police Benefit Association and the police union. A portion of the money received would be turned over to charity.

He added: "It looks to me as though there's not much we can do."

SIX PER CENT

Mr. Haddock said he had learned the proposed increase is an average six per cent, not 10 per cent as announced Saturday by one trucking firm.

A six-per-cent increase in the cost of goods freighted from the mainland would raise consumer prices one to 1½ per cent, Mr. Haddock calculated.

15 COMPANIES

Fifteen companies will soon petition the Public Utilities Commission for an increase, effective Jan. 18. The scale of rate revisions will be available in the truck line offices Dec. 22.

Others who wish to make submissions to the PUC must do so by Jan. 6. Timing of the proposal and the shortness of time for submissions is drawing criticism from Island residents.

"Food costs are going to rise," predicted Mr. Haddock, manager of Woodward's department store. Produce brought in by refrigerator trucks won't be affected, he added.

In Vancouver, truckers' spokesman Hal H. Williamson said the scale of proposed rate increases was too complex to explain in an average figure. It will depend on the truck line, the goods it carries and the route covered, he said.

The proposals vary between the mainland-Island route, island hauling and the Island-Gulf Islands distribution system, said Mr. Williamson.

He said the rate revision proposal comes at this time because only now do the truckers know what their 1967 costs will be.

Most of the requested increase is due to higher wages, he said.

Pupil Ratio of 33-1 Goal for Next Fall

A pupil-teacher ratio of 33 to 1 in Grade 1 next September is the objective of the Greater Victoria school board.

The board Monday endorsed the target set recently by a new co-operative committee made up of trustees and teachers.

Large classes in the Greater Victoria school district have been severely criticized by teachers in recent months, and were noted in the Hatrick-Downey report on the school system issued this fall.

Trustee Peter Bunn, co-chairman of the co-operative committee, said the 33-to-1 goal, even if reached, won't necessarily mean Grade 1 classes would have no more than 33 pupils. The ratio included all teachers in a school, and not all of them are in the classroom at once.

Assistant district superintendent A. J. Longmore reported 10 of 53 Grade 1 classes this fall have more than 35 children.

"There is need to take positive steps to reduce the Grade 1 class load," he said.

The board also invited to one of its January meetings the two medical doctors who now give sex education lectures to Grade 3 students whose parents approve.

Drs. Elizabeth Patriarche and G. P. Evans and assistant school superintendent A. J. Longmore had proposed doctors teach teachers how to deliver the lectures. The board deferred action on this suggestion and one that the program be expanded to include Grades 6 to 10.

School for Blanshard Plaque for Toone

A plaque in the planned replacement for North Ward elementary school will commemorate the work of the late mayor Alfred Toone for residents of the North Ward area.

The Greater Victoria school Board Monday accepted the recommendation of district superintendent Joseph Chell that the new school be named Blanshard. The board decided to include a plaque in the school.

North Ward Parent-Teacher Association had suggested the new school honor Mayor Toone.

Sidney's Town Status Stirs Stormy Reaction

Sidney's change of status from a village to a town has blown up a storm involving numerous angry businessmen, village commission and the department of municipal affairs.

Sidney businessmen charged that village commission Chairman A. W. Freeman led them to believe that it was automatic because of the village's population that Sidney would become a town Jan. 1, 1967.

Mr. Freeman said he believed Sidney would have to become a town "early in 1967," and that dissatisfaction expressed about the move was "so ridiculous I can't understand it."

ACTION ON REQUEST

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Monday Sidney would not have to become a town until 1968 if it didn't wish to but that his department had acted on a request June 24, 1966, from Sidney village commission to institute the change Jan. 1, 1967.

Mr. Campbell said he had been asked by a Sidney woman if it was fact that Sidney had to become a town by the January date.

He declined any comment on his answer to the woman, but read a telegram he had sent to village commission Monday.

It read:

"QUITE CLEAR"

"Because of representation being made to this department with respect to change of status of Sidney, I want to make it quite clear that the department of municipal affairs is acting on the unanimous recommendation of the village council as forwarded to me by way of your letter dated June 24, 1966.

"If there has been any change with respect to this recommendation, I would appreciate having it forthwith."

Friday night, at least 50 village businessmen phoned the Colonial office complaining that Mr. Freeman had suggested the move was an automatic one and necessary by Jan. 1, 1967.

NOT READY

They complained that in the light of recent stormy village affairs, Sidney was not ready to become a town.

Mr. Freeman, on the other hand, said the move would benefit Sidney financially. He said the change in status would represent $15,000 in extra per capita grants alone.

He also said the Jan. 1, 1967, date was chosen to facilitate bookkeeping.

Meanwhile, the village commission has announced that the change of status will be marked by a dinner at the Airport Travelodge Jan. 3.

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will be guest of honor.

Bottle Drive

Brentwood Bay Cubs and Scouts will hold their annual bottle drive from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Jan. 7.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I belong to a bridge club. We meet once every two weeks in one another's homes.

A couple (I will call them The Zs) have two dogs the size of mules. Whenever we play bridge at the Zs home these animals are running loose, leaping over the furniture, crowding us off the sofa during refreshment time, fighting us for the corned beef sandwiches. They snuff around under the tables and on one occasion tore my nylons.

My husband and I both like dogs but these animals are a nuisance. Do you feel that as guests, we have the right to ask the Zs to keep their dogs out of the living room when we are in their home? DOG-GONE!

Dear D.G.: I do. People who have pets should ask guests if they mind having animals around. If they sense a lack of enthusiasm, the livestock should be kept out of sight.

Dear Ann: I stood up and cheered when I read your advice to the "Interested Friend" who wanted to wise up a neighbor about her husband's extra-curricular activities. She may be "Interested" but she is no friend.

I had "Interested Friends," too. I also had a husband with a great many fine qualities, but unfortunately he had a weakness for pretty girls. Every so often he just had to go off and sow a few oats. We were married six years when I first learned what was going on, but by then we had three children and I wasn't about to throw out the babies with the bath water.

Next month we will celebrate our silver wedding anniversary. My husband still strays every once in a while, but there are so many rewarding and wonderful aspects of our marriage I'd be crazy to throw him out.

The last time an "Interested Friend" said, "I want to tell you something about your husband," I replied, "There's nothing you can tell me about my husband that I don't already know. Why don't you tell me something about your husband?"

Please spread the word, Annie. It might make life easier for other women who have decided as I have to live peacefully with that which we can not change.—RESIGNED AND CONTENT

Dear R. and C.: Great answer and one worth remembering.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a bachelor, new in this town and still living in a hotel. There are no unmarried girls at the place where I work so a fellow has to make his contacts where he can.

Friday night I was sitting in the lobby treading my column, in fact when a good-looking gal struck up a conversation. She said she was free for the evening so we wound up doing the town.

The next morning my wallet was missing. I have no proof that she took it, but I think she did. I know where she works and I wonder if I should call and ask if she can help me find my wallet. It's not the money but the credit cards I need.—XYZ

Dear XYZ: If you have no proof, forget it. In the meantime, I hope you have learned that a girl who is free for the evening can be pretty darned expensive.

Yellow Rosebuds In Bride's Bouquet

A heather-tweed suit in pale green tones, accented with contrasting tan accessories, was worn by Ernest Gaye Lindstrom, recently, when she became the bride of Gary James Cunningham. The two-piece suit was in double-breasted style. Yellow rosebuds formed the cascade bouquet she carried.

Arrangements of pink carnations and white chrysanthemums decorated Centennial United Church when Dr. S. J. B. Parsons heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lindstrom, 3140 Stevenson Place, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cunningham, 1087 Stoba Lane. Mr. Lindstrom gave his daughter in marriage.

During the wedding, Mrs. S. Jordens sang "The Wedding Prayer," accompanied by organist Miss Elizabeth Chinnick.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Carol Crowther was in a two-piece suit of heather-tweed in pale-peach tones. Her accessories were beige and her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

Best man was John Newton, and John Clayton and Don McNeill ushered the guests. Pink and white streamers and wedding bells decorated the church hall for the reception which followed. Doves and wedding bells topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table. D. MacLean and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cunningham, 1087 Stoba Lane, proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple is now making their home at 879 Esquimalt Road, following a honeymoon trip to Cowichan Lake. For travelling, the new Mrs. Cunningham accented her wedding ensemble with a yellow rose corsage.

FULFORD — The marriage of Gladys Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Patterson of Fulford Harbour, B.C., and John Robertson Campbell, Victoria, son of Mrs. W. R. Campbell, Vancouver, and the late Mr. Campbell, took place at St. Mary's Anglican Church in Fulford, with Ven. Archdeacon R. B. Horsfield officiating.

Neither clouds nor rain could dim the radiance of the pretty bride as she entered the church on the arm of her father, Mrs. A. House played the organ.

The bride was lovely in her full-length white gown of a sonesta fabric, elbow-length sleeves, and fitted bodice with crescent waist opening into a softly controlled train. The waist and sleeves were circled with tiny re-embroidered flowers dotted with seed pearls. White chrysanthemums with red roses were in her bouquet. A tiny white floral cluster headpiece held her full-length cathedral veil, trimmed with chantilly lace.

The bride wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom. White chrysanthemums and holly gave a festive air to the historical little church.

Matrons of honor were Mrs. Leslie Fraser of Burnaby and Mrs. Bruce McFarlane of Victoria, and maid of honor, Miss Gillian Scott of Victoria. Little Elaine Patterson, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

The attendants were gowned in floor-length cranberry red velvet, Empire waists, gathered softly at the back. Red satin sashes swept to the hem. Modified kakoi sleeves were elbow-length. They had holly head bands and feathered chrysanthemums in front. Their identical bouquets were white chrysanthemums, holly and pine in crescent sprays.

The best man was Mr. Alan Trelford and ushers were Mr. William Heidgck, Vancouver, and Tom Scyase, Victoria.

The reception for some 200 guests was held at the Beaver Point Hall.

The hall was gay with white chrysanthemums, holly and cedar boughs, green and white streamers and white wedding bells.

A dainty pearl pendant fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Violet Evelyn Locke, recently, when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with John Phillip Cox.

The pendant, something borrowed from the groom's grandmother, and his gift of pearl drop earrings, were the only jewelry accents to the bride's gown of satin. The bodice of the gown was fashioned with a bateau neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. A lace-trimmed over-skirt of nylon topped the sheath skirt and swept back in train. Her nylon lace veil misted softly to waist length from a pearl para. Appliqued rosebuds topped the Bible she carried.

Holy Trinity Church, Sooke, was decorated with yellow carnations at the altar and white chrysanthemums when Rev. John Lancaster officiated at the service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Locke of Sooke and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cox, 324 Falmouth Road. Mr. Locke gave his daughter in marriage and Mrs. M. Woodhams was organist.

Matching empire-line gowns of yellow silk crepe were worn by the bride's attendants. They wore floral headpieces in tone, edged with net, and carried white carnation bouquets.

The only jewelry accents to their gowns were the groom's gifts. Maid of honor Miss Maureen Carson received an aurora borealis brooch and earrings; the bride's sister, Miss Lillian Locke, was given a gold locket, and Miss Wendy Bishop, a cameo pendant.

Best man was John Chipper-field and ushering the guests were Ken Messerschmidt and Rolf Johanson. The three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception in the Sooke Community Hall was made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. J. R. Brandon. Floral decorations were by Mrs. B. McMaster, who also arranged the decorations in the church. Ian Fowler proposed the toast to his niece.

For travelling on honeymoon to Oregon and California, the new Mrs. Cox donned a beige suit, with contrasting green blouse and deep beige accessories. Roses from her bouquet formed her corsage.

The couple will be making their new home at Cowichan Lake.

The pair fled when the accused woman, still clutching her purse, screamed.

The youth was charged after several days of investigation.

Three Victoria youths were sentenced for their part in the Dec. 4 thefts from the Western O.K. Tire Store, 2968 Douglas.

Richard Drinkwater, 19, was sentenced to three months.

Benjamin Devison, 18, received a year and John Butts, 18, was sentenced to nine months. All resided at 632 Manchester.

The Victoria youths had been invited to partake in robbing the store by a group of Nanaimo youths who had broken in earlier.

Frederick Thomas, 2314 Belmont, was fined $50 after pleading guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

The youth spent the weekend in jail after he refused Saturday to say where he got the beer.

He told court Monday he checked with the person who provided the beer and he was ready to tell the name although the person was a juvenile.

The youth had been charged after police answered complaints of a disturbance at a drive-in and the accused and two other young companions were found in a car with four bottles of beer. The car was incorrectly reported Saturday as belonging to Thomas.

John A. Dadds, 21, of 1255 Pandora, was fined $75 after pleading guilty to a charge of contravening the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Leslie F. John of Nanaimo pleaded guilty to an impaired driving charge and also to driving while under suspension.

He was sentenced to three months on each count and prohibited from driving in Canada for three months.

Magistrate William Ostler said it would not be necessary, because he was a juvenile.

He gave a breathalyzer reading of .20 per cent after being stopped by police on Douglas Street Dec. 16.

Brian LeStrange of Nanaimo was fined $50 after pleading guilty to an impaired driving charge, and was fined $150 for driving while under suspension.

He gave a breathalyzer reading of .22 after being stopped by police near Colwood Dec. 17.

Fined in traffic court were: Kenneth Lowe, 1000 Tillam, $75, careless driving; Ralph Martin, 1845 Burton, $50, careless driving; James Warner, 1160 Rockland, $40, careless driving; Dorothy D. White, 731 Courtney, $40, careless driving; Harold J. Evans, 700 West Burnside, $300, impaired driving, also prohibited from driving in Canada for three months.

Bitten Girl Reported Recovering

WINNIPEG (CP) — Nine-year-old Doreen Spence of Churchill, Man., was in fair condition in Winnipeg Children's Hospital Sunday, recovering from injuries received when a pack of dogs attacked her. An RCMP spokesman at Churchill, 610 miles north of here, said the child was "bitten over her entire body" by 17 dogs, mostly underfed sled dogs.

Gale Cuts 'Hot Line'

HELSINKI (Reuters) — Gale force winds and snow sweeping Finland severed all links with the western world and snapped the "hot line" linking Washington and Moscow for 13 hours Sunday.

The line, installed between the White House and the Kremlin in 1963 to reduce the risk of war by accident, was restored.

Reds Expelled

PEKING (Reuters) — China has ordered three of the six Russian news correspondents here to leave the country before Christmas. They were accused of "anti-China reporting."

U.S. Jets Zap Fuel Depots

SAIGON (AP)—Seven waves of U.S. jet planes Monday pounded a fuel storage depot 14 1/2 miles north of Hanoi and initial pilot reports said all bombs and rockets were on target, a U.S. spokesman said.

North Vietnamese MIGs took to the skies but did not engage the raiders, flying in waves of three to five planes each, the spokesman said.

It was the first U.S. strike in the vicinity of the North Vietnamese capital in five days. Foul flying weather kept American raiders from following up strikes closer to the city last Tuesday and Wednesday. These attacks brought Communist charges that the United States bombed the city centre itself, killing civilians and damaging the Red Chinese and Romanian embassies.

The U.S. command, which normally announces air strikes against North Vietnam 24 hours after they occur, announced this one in less than 12 hours.

The new aerial attack near Hanoi capped a day that included these other developments:

- For the second day in a row, U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers attacked suspected North Vietnamese staging and supply areas south of the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.
- The U.S. Navy destroyer Maddox, operating off the coast seven miles north of the zone, intercepted 20 enemy cargo junks heading south and destroyed three of them, while damaging another four with her five-inch guns. The U.S. command said it had no word on what happened to the remaining 13 junks, but that it was doubtful they got through.
- In the Mekong delta, south of Saigon, capital of South Vietnam, four U.S. Navy "swift boats" fought a fierce eight-minute battle with a Viet Cong guerrilla unit along a river bank. A U.S. spokesman said the four-man crew of one of the 31-foot navy craft suffered heavy casualties—meaning they were knocked out as a fighting unit—while casualties and damage to the others were light.
- First units of a 4,000-man brigade of the U.S. 9th Division set up camp in South Vietnam after a greeting from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who served with the division in Europe in the Second World War. Westmoreland now is commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

The arrival of the brigade boosted the number of U.S. personnel in South Vietnam to 372,000.

Sheep Killing Blamed on Dogs

SURREY (CP)—Vicious dogs were blamed for killing a sheep Saturday. A. C. Black, owner of the animal, said game warden Don Eddy told him it looked as if dogs were responsible and not a cougar as suggested earlier.

Kremlin Lauds Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union de-emphasized Monday its two-year stress on collective leadership and heaped personal honors on Leonid I. Brezhnev.

For his 60th birthday Monday, Brezhnev received his country's highest award, two standing ovations in the Soviet Parliament from the 1,517 deputies and his picture on the front page of special editions of all national newspapers.

The title Hero of the Soviet Union, the top award was presented along with an Order of Lenin and a gold medal.

Peking Action Unlikely

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China plans no direct intervention in Vietnam despite the verbal barages from Peking protesting alleged U.S. bombing inside the Hanoi city limits, diplomatic sources said Monday.

Some diplomats said Red China might be driven to strengthen its support for North Vietnam and increase its indirect involvement in the war, however.

This consensus was reached after careful study and analysis of statements from the mainland during the past several days.

Communist China has charged that its Hanoi embassy was badly damaged in a U.S. air raid on residential areas of the North Vietnamese capital last Wednesday. This was denied by Saigon and Washington officials.

An editorial Monday in the Peking People's Daily, official newspaper of the Communist Chinese army, said the U.S. and Soviet Union were planning to extend the Vietnam war to mainland China. It said the Chinese were ready to make "maximum national sacrifices."

It said China would continue its powerful backing of the North Vietnamese.

Few Waved Goodbye

Around Town

Drivers Will Face More Roadblocks

"There will be more roadblocks over the holiday season," Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson warned Monday.

Some charges were laid following a weekend roadblock, when a five-man team of Saanich policemen made safety checks on 308 vehicles.

Warning tickets were issued to 106 drivers for 151 defects. There were 41 cases of defective licence illumination lights, 29 faulty stoplights, 14 cars with only one headlight, 10 with faulty signalling devices, five without horns, and two without windshield wipers.

There were 14 drivers without registration slips, 13 without driving licences, and nine minors driving without insurance.

B.C. Telephone Co. operators, all 154 of them, will man the boards during the Christmas rush.

While holiday-goers stuff themselves with Christmas turkey and good cheer, then reach for their telephones to call with distant relatives, the company's operators will be braced for more than last year's total of 16,530 calls.

Zoning regulations which will "set the district back many years" were attacked by rate taxpayers from Langford to Metchem at a public hearing Monday at Langford.

"No allowance has been made for commercial growth," complained A. J. Cottyn. He said of 175 entrances onto the highway from Parsons bridge to Langford Lake, 106 were from business properties, but the area drifted off soon after they had been given their presents by Santa Claus.

When the last boatload of Jaycees pulled away from the beach for the Santa ship Blue Ford, anchored in the bay, only two mongrel dogs stood on the bleak, log-strewn beach.

Some Jaycees hadn't noticed. "Boy, I got a kick out of handing out presents there," said 1966 Santa ship chairman Don Ritson.

But whatever happened, it's Christmas, something which the 15 Jaycees never forgot during the two-day cruise.

They generated Christmas spirit among hundreds of children and adults who streamed down in cars and trucks and took to their particular landing, beach or jetty to see THE ship of the year.

No one cared about the rain or the chill winds which blew in from the north and swirled around the hundreds of fir-covered islands, shrouded almost completely in rain cloud.

And from the 65-foot Blue Ford, red-jacketed Jaycees carried bags and baskets of toys and candy of all descriptions.

There were toys of all imaginable kinds, cuddly animals bigger than some of the children who received them, little toys, sets of games, dolls, books, bags of candy, bags of peanuts and fruit.

Young children had never seen so many presents. Older children were wide-eyed with anticipation and adults in the more remote islands compared the array to a supermarket.

To others, the ship was even more fascinating than Santa, the clown or the presents.

The 60-ton former RCMP boat, owned and skippered by 50-year-old Victoria ex-Jaycee, Kaare J. Norgaard, was fully decorated with Christmas lights, reindeer, a sleigh, and a Christmas tree, with recorded carols playing through loudspeakers.

The project, which still cost $500 after most of the toys and the boat had been donated, is described by Victoria Jaycee president Grant Johnstone as the district's most ambitious.

There were 38 people aboard the American ship, the 98-foot Brookfield, and it visited 13 different towns in the Gulf and San Juan Islands for the 16th time.

The hearing will be continued Jan. 4 in Belmont high school.

Police are seeking a youth who pushed a small boy into Colquitz Creek last Thursday.

Steven Melkie, 6, of 330 West Burnside, struggled for some minutes in the creek before being hauled out by Edward La Trace, 13, of 702 Gorge, who saw the boy in difficulties from the highway overpass above the creek, and dashed to his aid.

The majority of complaints at the meeting, which was attended by some 75 people, were that there was insufficient commercial property throughout the area covered by the proposed regulations.

Welfare Staff Asks Raise

A brief has been presented to Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell seeking wage increases of 22 per cent for members of the 600-member B.C. Association of Social Workers.

This would mean the wage range would run from a low of $200 a month to a high of $384.

"We have no recommendations from the Civil Service Commission yet," he said.

Good News Given 50 Loggers

Christmas may look slightly brighter for about 50 loggers and their families hit by the shutdown of the Canadian Puget Sound Lumber and Timber Company's Jordan River operation.

International Woodworkers of America local 1-118 president Murray Drew said in Victoria that unemployment benefits delayed in payment by questions as to the status of the shutdown will be paid within a few days.

Former woods workers of the Jordan River project had complained they were not receiving unemployment compensation due to the shutdown being considered a "labor dispute."

Floods Dash Work for 1,000

By MARIE CADORETTE

LAKE COWICHAN — Only days before Christmas, woodsmen faced mass layoffs because of heavy floods. More than 1,000 men are affected.

B.C. Forest Products mill was crippled, there was no graveyard shift Monday night, a total of 480 men are affected.

Western Forest Industries at Honeycomb Bay laid off 400 men.

About 180 men at Gordon River logging camp are out of work because the booming dump is flooded.

In the B.C. Forest Products mill at Youbou, a company official said the mill "is barely getting by."

The mill was not flooded out Monday night, but little work was going on because of high water all around the plant.

Water surrounding the mill was several feet deep in places. There is only a small crew on the job at Gordon River.

At Honeycomb Bay, water had entered the power house, and two electrical motors were removed from flooding water. The lake must drop a foot before normal operations resume at the big mill.

The sawmill at Hillcrest has not been affected by high waters said a company official.

He said 325 men will be working up to Christmas.

In the downtown area of Lake Cowichan, businessmen were not so fortunate.

A shopkeeper, Mrs. Anna Mueller, said she could not make it to her store on South Shore Road.

"We did not want to take any chances," said Mrs. Mueller. "We have to try somehow Tuesday. It is not a drive for a normal car to go through."

She said sometimes trucks would take people from one side of town to another.

One school, Gordon Loma annex, has been temporarily closed. The post office has reopened in the United Church Hall. Many houses are flooded and some people have evacuated.

Hearts Not In It

Trays Shield Topless Waitresses

LONDON (Reuters)—Bare-breasted waitresses desperately clutching trays to their chests in an offbeat London restaurant Monday night are refused to let go.

The girls had brought the topless dress back to London—legally this time—but were too shy to allow a packed house more than a glimpse of what it came to see.

The girls, all former models, simply did not have their hearts in their job. The nervous girls turned their backs, held their trays high, lit cigarettes and smiled over their shoulders to defend their modesty.

They were chosen for good looks and an average 36-inch bust—restaurant owner Paul Ince said anything over that length thwarts.

"This only confirms what I know already," said one of 350 guests.

"See one and you've seen 'em all," said another. But one waiter had to tell an over-ardent guest: "Keep your hand in your pocket, mate."

A London Council official said the council could take no action against the girls because they were in a private club.

Toplessness first arrived in 1964 when two sisters were taken to court on indecency charges for appearing bare from the waist up at a movie premiere. They were discharged but warned not to appear that way again.

Policeman Shot

Montreal Robbers Kill Each Other In Holdup Attempt

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said two bandits apparently killed each other Monday during an attempted escape after a robbery at an east-end bank. A constable accidentally wounded himself during the investigation.

Investigating officers found the bodies of the two men—identified as Richard Lortie, 25, and Yvon Dubreuil, 25, both of Montreal—in the front seat of a car shortly after the robbery of a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

SHOT IN LEG
Jean Rivard, 23, a city police constable, accidentally shot himself in the leg when he drew his gun as a rowdy crowd gathered around the car after it had come to a stop.

The bandits entered the bank—located in a shopping centre—by crashing the front glass door with a four-foot bar shortly after five employees arrived to work.

One of the men, holding a 12-gauge shotgun, fired at the employees to the rear of the bank while his companion stuffed cash into a cardboard box.

As the pair dashed into the street, the man carrying the shotgun slipped on the broken glass, an eyewitness told police. The bandit struggled to the car but his companion began driving away before he could get in.

RUN DOWN
The man with the gun was run down and dragged about 25 feet before the driver could stop, police said. He then was pulled into the vehicle.

Detectives speculated it was

Peace Milestone Passes

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The General Assembly approved unanimously Monday an outer-space treaty welcomed as a milestone on the path of U.S.-Soviet agreement in the quest for peace in the nuclear age.

The outer space treaty outlaws the placing of nuclear weapons in orbit and use of the moon and other celestial bodies for military bases.

It now is open for signature and ratification by all countries of the world, including Communist China. The treaty was the product of intense U.S.-Soviet negotiations.

Crane Tops Grain Elevator

Monstrous crane being used by Victoria Machinery Depot in construction of 80,000,000 offshore oil drilling rig boom higher than Victoria's grain elevator in telephoto lens shot as it loads components for rig being assembled at Ogden Point. ### Compromise Talked

Just Four Pages May Be Changed To Settle Issue

NEW YORK (UPI)—The publisher said, "On the contrary, all Harper profits will go to the Kennedy Library except for a small return to Harper's on our first printing. In no event will this limit be exceeded. Mr. Manchester is also making substantial contributions to the library from his earnings on the book."

Although Canfield's statement was polite, it had an undertone of criticism in regard to some of the statements made by Mrs. Kennedy and her brothers-in-law, Sen. Robert F. and Edward M. Kennedy, regarding the commercial motives behind the rush to publication of a book that was not, by agreement, to have come out until 1965. Robert Kennedy had been quoted as saying:

"The principals involved in this dispute are all people for whom I have a deep regard and admiration and Mr. Manchester's book itself is a moving, sincere, and outstanding piece of writing. He has been subject to many repeated pressures for many months. He was asked to prepare for publication an accurate account of the events of the assassination and he was assured his role as author would be respected."

Canfield denied that Manchester got anything in that neighborhood as an advance on the book. He said Harper & Row actually had given the author $40,000.

"Harper & Row was not motivated by profit when it undertook production of the book,"

Canfield said. "He (Manchester) kept saying that he didn't want to make a penny out of it. But apparently $650,000 makes a difference."

Garden Notes

Off-Beat Books

By M. V. CHESNUT

Looking back over my files, I seem to have spent quite a bit of time and column space in previous Christmas seasons talking about garden books, which perhaps is a good thing. Not only does a good garden book make a most welcome Christmas gift for some happy friend or relative, but also, with the dullest, darkest, wettest season of the year coming up, it isn't a bad idea to treat yourself to a book slanted to your particular interest.

Those readers who keep scrapbooks of these columns will have the names and descriptions of some how-to-do-it garden books I have recommended in the past. Today I thought I would like to tell you about a few rather off-beat garden books which have given me much pleasure.

One is The Joy of a Small Garden by Janet Gillespie and published by Dodd, Mead and Co. Mrs. Gillespie is the wife of a New England school teacher and her book is the story of two rank beginners and the garden they made the hard way, with little skill and almost no money. The style is witty and informal, full of family anecdotes and amusing stories of the Gillespies' progress to become knowledgeable gardeners.

Bob and Janet Gillespie, in their first home of their own, go through the usual cycle of biting off more than they can chew and starting projects they can't finish on their half-acre plot. Eventually, what with having babies and with Janet's bursitis and Bob's sacroiliac trouble, they are forced to devise labor-saving designs and methods in their garden. Some are most ingenious and highly practicable.

Another welcome addition to my bookshelves is Plant Doctoring is Fun by Cynthia Westcott, published by Van Nostrand. I own several of Dr. Westcott's textbooks on plant diseases and pests, but I don't think I ever thought of her as a person until I read this most amusing autobiography.

It is hard to believe that this woman scientist, who discovered the cause and cure of the disastrous azalea petal blight and devised effective control measures for brand cancer in roses, had to take three cracks at the oral examination for her Ph.D. degree from Cornell University before she passed. Eventually, after some years in research for university and government experimental stations, she set up in private practice as a plant doctor, making in her first year a total profit of $34.75!

Cynthia Westcott has the unique ability of making the rather dull subject of plant pathology come alive before your eyes. She seems to have had far more practical experience with blights and pests than most writers, but I think the chief reason why her book is so readable is because every line reflects the fact she loves her work and wouldn't be happy in any other line.

The Wonderful World of Bulbs by Bebe Miles was given a rather lukewarm welcome when it arrived in the mail one morning. I couldn't remember why I had ordered it when I already owned two adequate texts on bulbs, and the enclosed bill was shattering to say the least — the thing cost me $9, about twice as much as I was accustomed to paying for garden books.

Once I dipped into it, I was lost, and I actually took it to bed with me for three nights running. Mrs. Miles really knows her stuff, not only about the bulbs themselves and how to grow them, but all about their history, their varied uses in the garden, and what plants make good companions for them. Her methods of pest control are unconventional, to say the least — her recommendation for squirrels is a pouchful of rocks and a good throwing arm! I find myself turning more and more to her book when my mail brings knotty bulb problems to my desk.

ART BUCHWALD Finds Them Negative

No Yes-Men Around Johnson

WASHINGTON — The immediate reaction of most people, when they heard that Bill Moyers had resigned from the White House, was that there wouldn't be anybody left in the administration who would stand up and say "No" to President Johnson.

There are many in Washington who believe that President Johnson will now be surrounded with nothing but "yes men," but an unnamed White House aide denied emphatically that this was true.

He told me, "There are many of us who work in the White House who say 'no' to the President three and four times a day and he respects us for it."

"Could you give me an example?" I said. "Well, just yesterday, I was in the President's office and he said to me, 'Do you think my popularity is slipping as much as the polls indicate?' and I said, 'No, Mr. President, I don't think it is.'"

"That's amazing," I said. "And he didn't get angry?" "He did not. He respected me for saying 'no' to him."

"Could you give me another example?" "Well, last week one of the people in the White House went to the President and the President said to him, 'I hope you haven't planned to spend Christmas with your family,' and this person returned without hesitation, 'No, Mr. President, I hadn't. Now does that sound like a yes man to you?'"

"There are just two lapsed examples," the aide said. "But it happens every day. No president wants his staff to agree with him all the time."

"Why, a few weeks ago we had a meeting and the President asked our frank opinion on what we thought about a tax raise. One aide said, 'Yes, Mr. President, I think there ought to be one.' And the President said, 'I don't like yes men on my staff.' So the aide immediately said, 'No, Mr. President, I don't think there should be one.'"

"Things like that give you faith," I had to admit. "You must understand," the White House aide said, "that you're not doing a service to the President, or the country, if you agree with him all the time."

"I recall when I first started in this job being ushered into the President's office and the President said to me, 'Do you think ah can please all of the people all of the time and still be a great president?' And I said, 'No, Mr. President, I don't think you can.' And he said, 'If there's anything ah hate it's a know-it-all.'"

"That's a side of the President no one ever hears about," I said.

"Sure, we're going to miss Bill Moyers," the White House aide said, "but there isn't one of us who isn't willing to fight for what we believe in if we have the facts. Only a few weeks ago the President asked one of us down at the LBJ ranch, 'What's the speed limit in Texas?' The aide replied, '75 miles an hour,' and the President said, 'Ah thought it was 90 miles an hour.' But the aide said, 'No, Mr. President, it's 75 miles an hour.'"

"The President said, 'Would you split the difference with me, and call it 85 miles an hour?' The aide agreed, which proves Mr. Johnson is willing to compromise, even if he knows he's wrong."

Just then the phone rang and the aide picked it up. "No, Mr. President — of course not, Mr. President. No sir — nope — no and I'll say no again. Of course you're the President but it's still no."

He hung up, perspiring.

"What was that all about?" I asked him.

"The President wanted to know if I sent Bobby Kennedy a Christmas card."

I Wish I'd Known at 18...

By SYDNEY HARRIS

That it is impossible to "know yourself" until you have been tested by adversity or confronted with an uncompromising choice between self-interest and self-sacrifice.

That "living for pleasure" is both the worst and the best of philosophies — depending on how narrowly or broadly one defines "pleasure."

That conservatism is useful only if it tries to conserve what is truly usable for the present and future, while dropping what has outlived its usefulness; and that liberalism is useful only if it retains that tradition and continuity necessary for man's growth, instead of throwing overboard all baggage of the past.

That our conduct is influenced by our expectations rather than by reality; and reality then transforms (and distorts) itself to fit our expectations.

That if you begin smoking to prove you are a man, 30 years later you will try to quit for the same reason.

That boredom is always a sign of a lack of resourcefulness within oneself, and not an indictment of the environment.

That if we use people long enough as instrumentalities of our own purposes, rather than as ends in themselves, we eventually lose our own identity and become that most unattractive of things, a raw and naked will.

That sneering at one's "inferior" gives them an immediate superiority over you.

That it is impossible to live without faith, for even the most despairing and suicidally-inclined have faith in the peace of oblivion, which may be as much a delusion as any other.

That short-term gains are almost always long-term losses, and the postponement of satisfactions, until we are fully prepared to accept them and treat them properly, is one of the hallmarks of maturity.

That you will be as much out of rapport with your own adolescent children as your parents were with you.

That "useless" knowledge learned in school is the most enduring, and, in later years, the most comforting; while the "practical" knowledge becomes outmoded and forgotten in a few years, as conditions change.

That inherited ideas, those we have taken in with our mother's milk, are precisely the ones it is most important to question as we grow older, for they are unconscious chains limiting our freedom of thought and inquiry.

Mai Flees Reviews

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — The British reviewers were so shocked by Mal Zetterli's Night Games — the film not the book — that Mal decided to pull up stakes in England where the Swedish actress-writer has been living with her husband, author David Hughes. They will settle in an old farmhouse in the south of France, grow grapes, produce wine, write more books and make more shockable movies.

The BBC bought the two-hour film, Rush to Judgment, based on the book by New York lawyer Mark Lane, which disagrees with the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President Kennedy. Europeans have always been skeptical of the findings.

Another fact proving that You Only Live Twice will be the last of the Bond pictures! Susan Connery marries Klasy Suzuki before the fadeout. Now you know there couldn't be a married James Bond — not for more than a chapter anyway.

Jill Haworth improves her "cabaret" role with every performance, I am told by the management. With experience, I am sure she could become a fine stage actress which is rather different than acting in movies. Heather MacCrae, daughter of Sheila and Gordon, plans to work behind the camera or in front of the footlights when she completes her Yale drama scholarship. Joe Levine record-hopped to the coast and back in one day. "I caught up with three movies I hadn't seen — two on the plane and at night in my home projection room."

Steve McQueen's picture, The Sand Pebbles, will be called something else, everywhere but in the U.S. In Germany, it will be Gunboat on the Yangtze; in Spain, The Odyssey of the Gunboat Yangtze; and in Italy, Those of the San Pablo. They haven't yet decided what for England where they don't know what sand pebbles symbolize. I don't either. Do you?

Homosexual Legality Approved

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons approved Monday night a bill legalizing homosexual acts between consenting male adults in private.

The action capped a long campaign by those who say the existing law makes practising homosexuals vulnerable to blackmail.

Leo Abe, Labor party member who sponsored the bill, said the law now offers homosexuals a choice of celibacy or criminality.

The bill now goes for debate in the House of Lords before becoming law. The Lords already have indicated they will pass it.

OTTAWA (Special)—The government has set in motion a massive overhaul of securities legislation and opened the possibility of compensation for people ruined in the Prudential Finance collapse.

In the Commons Monday, events moved rapidly:

- Prime Minister Pearson said legislation is being drafted, requiring the co-operation of the provinces, to establish a national securities commission.
- Finance Minister Sharp said he hopes for a federal-provincial conference to look into

Opposition Leaps On 'Leak'

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Sharp's political career today hangs on the truth or falsity of hints of a budget "leak."

Conservative leader John Diefenbaker said Monday there must have been a leak and it had to be "looked into."

Mr. Sharp denied there was any substance to suggestions that he gave Jack Van Luven, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, or anybody else any hint of what was in the budget.

PREDICTION

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson said Mr. Pearson had an assurance from Mr. Sharp neither he nor Mr. Van Luven claimed there was a leak.

According to a news report from Vancouver Mr. Van Luven predicted, before Mr. Sharp started his mini-budget speech, that there would be a one per cent increase in the sales tax and the income tax.

In fact, there was a one per cent increase in the sales tax, and the old age security tax was also increased.

"COINCIDENCE"

A spokesman for Mr. Van Luven said Monday it was an "unfortunate coincidence" that he was 50 per cent correct.

According to the news reports, Mr. Van Luven was at a reception given by the Vancouver financial community last Wednesday.

Mr. Sharp was a guest, speaking mainly about the Mercantile Bank issue to between 50 and 75 people.

At a press conference, after he had delivered his mini-budget, Mr. Sharp said the report of a "leak" was completely false.

Santa-Scrooge Budget

PENSION-FUND TAX LEAPS

OTTAWA (CP)—The upper third of income taxpayers will pay up to $120 a year more and the federal sales tax will jump to 12 per cent from 11 to provide $290,000,000 for increased pension benefits. Finance Minister Sharp announced Monday in what amounts to a Santa-Scrooge budget.

Both steps take effect Jan. 1, 1967.

The additional taxes are being imposed to pay for the new guaranteed income plan which will provide $30 a month to old age pensioners who need it to supplement the $75 monthly now paid at age 69. Starting Jan. 1, the qualifying age drops to 68, adding 100,000 to the pension rolls.

The income guarantee plan is expected to increase old age security cost by $280,000,000 a year, $10,000,000 less than the projected yield of the two tax increases. Mr. Sharp said the measures are designed to meet cost of the supplement and to leave "a small margin."

MEET PENSIONERS

Mr. Sharp said the two tax increases are all he now is imposing. Both are to meet the pension bill. The economy generally was in a delicate balance. It does not call for a more fundamental change in the basic tax structure.

The finance minister made no change in basic income tax, corporation taxes, the special tobacco and alcohol levies or import duties.

The higher tax takes the form of increasing to $240 a year the present $120-a-year maximum on the amounts taxpayers pay in the current four-per-cent old age security tax on incomes.

The increase affects all those who have taxable incomes of $3,000 or more, after all deductions and allowances now permitted by law.

LOW INCOMES BENEFIT

This means, says the finance department, there will be no tax increase for single persons with incomes of $4,100 or less, married persons earning $5,100 or less or a married man with one child earning $5,400 or less.

Married taxpayers with two dependent children qualified for family allowances will start to feel the pinch of the new tax at $3,700. Married taxpayers with four children qualified for family allowances will be hit at the $6,300 bracket.

WATCH TO GUARD

In the case of the increase in sales taxes, Mr. Sharp said the revenue department will watch to guard against charging the tax before Jan. 1.

Because foodstuffs, services and some other items such as fuel now are exempt from the sales tax, the one-percentage-point increase should mean less than a one-per-cent increase in living costs, Mr. Sharp said.

He also said that building materials and production machinery

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says

Walter Gordon, former finance minister, is expected to resign from Parliament in the next few weeks.

The newspaper quotes friends of Mr. Gordon as saying he had intended to announce his resignation Friday but the announcement was postponed to next week at the urging of his supporters.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT

The newspaper quotes sources as saying Mr. Gordon's decision is primarily a matter of conscience—"He is said to feel he must resign because he believes the government has no intention of curbing foreign investment."

Mr. Gordon, who has represented the Toronto riding of Davenport since 1962, campaigned in the last election on the issue of restricting foreign investment, particularly United States investment, in Canada.

LEFT CABINET

Mr. Gordon resigned from the cabinet three days after last year's election in which the Liberals were returned with another minority government.

Mr. Gordon said then he felt he had no choice but to resign from the cabinet because he had advised the prime minister to seek a majority mandate from the electorate.

Ottawa sources are quoted as saying Mr. Gordon's wife is insistent he get out of politics.

Four Die, Many Flee Fiery Gasoline Flood

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Flaming gasoline pouring down a storm sewer after a massive four-death traffic crash Monday sent residents fleeing from their homes in a five-mile strip across northern Indianapolis. Eight schools were evacuated.

Civil defence authorities sounded the "all clear" shortly after noon but warned all returning housecholders to flush toilets to wash away any remaining gas fumes.

Indiana state fairgrounds buildings were being opened as an evacuation centre when the danger subsided, five hours after a fuel tank truck jack-knifed on one of the city's busiest streets.

The tanker explosion and fire engulfed six vehicles. The driver was severely burned.

The semi-trailer truck jackknifed and two cars crashed into the truck which instantly exploded in a gush of flames, said eyewitness Ralph Smith, 19.

The billowing fire roared over the truck and five cars, burning so intensely that first fire companies at the scene were driven back and had to call for help.

SKIPPER CAST TWO AWAY

PIRAEUS, Greece (Reuters)—The captain of a West German freighter was convicted Monday of abandoning two stowaways—one of whom has never been found—on a raft in the Mediterranean.

Capt. Bernhard Stuve, 42, who said he had left the men at their own request, was sentenced to a year, but was freed after paying $1,500 in lieu of nine months in jail. He already has served three months since his arrest.

He was convicted of leaving unassisted people at sea and facilitating the entry of stowaways into Greece.

Halli Dalfie, 31, of Turkey, managed to reach Crete and accused the captain of putting him on the raft. A search failed to find the other stowaway, Agdi Elgium, 18, of Lebanon.

Big Two Talk Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. is understood to be urging Russia to limit further deployment of anti-ballistic missiles to avoid a costly new spiral in the arms race that would not improve the strategic position of either country.

Administration sources said Monday the U.S. would make a final decision on whether to start deployment of its own ABM system until January or February.

These sources said international discussions have begun on the perils posed by the Soviet entry into this field.

The Johnson administration had hoped to avoid involvement in another arms race with Russia.

But Defence Secretary McNamara disclosed Nov. 10 anti-missile missiles were going into position around Moscow and Leningrad. Congressional pressure for Nike-Xs around New York and Washington appeared immediately.

Thursday Last Chance to Help 500

The Colonist 500 Fund will close Thursday, Dec. 22 at 5 p.m.

This will enable Colonist staffers to divide receipts of the fund equally into 500 cheques to be sent before Christmas to the 500 families selected neediest in the Greater Victoria area by welfare agencies.

Here are examples of the kind of families the fund is aimed at helping to a little brighter Christmas:

Two of the area's Bettys have numerous things in common.

Each has an alcoholic husband who has left her with their four children.

Each is flat broke.

son, got himself what was considered an adequate job, her social assistance was cut off.

"There are still three children (ages 10, 12 and 14) in the house, but now Rod wants to go out and get married—and save his own money," Betty No. 1 complains.

Her house is a miserable little shack. All three younger children are in school. Among her "modern" conveniences are her water-pump faucet and kerosene lamps.

Betty No. 2 is a little different.

A Victoria woman, she does have a little money. At least she will have when the people for whom she has cleaned suites can find enough to pay her for her work.

Betty No. 2's children are 6, 4, 3, and 1½. She had to pay somebody to look after them when she got her month-long cleaning job, and she had to buy supplies with which to clean.

She finished her cleaning job a month ago and received the reassuring news that her employers would pay her as soon as the Christmas season is over.

"You know how it is at Christmas," her employers said. "So little money and yet so much to buy."

Yes, Betty No. 2 already knew that. She could have spent the entire day talking about nothing but that.

Reg Clarkson, chairman of the city's Social Action Committee, said Monday what happened to Betty No. 2 with respect to her employers not paying her "happens quite often."

"This woman's desperate," he said. "And women like her (self-employed) are so vulnerable to this type of thing."

It's families like those of the Bettys that the Colonist 500 Fund is aimed at helping.

Cheques from the fund help to pay rent, heat, light, water, medicine, clothing and food bills.

During the weekend $1,017.74 was added to the fund, bringing the total to $11,571.23. But with the fund's closing date set for this Thursday, the fund has considerable distance to cover yet to match last year's record $15,000 collection. can make donations to the

Canada's Paul Conlin stops progress of Russian

Canadians Have Way to Go Before World Puck Tournery

MOSCOW 1, CANADA 2

Burgeoning hopes that Canada's national hockey team is about ready to bring the world amateur championship back to this country didn't quite shoot higher last night at Memorial Arena although the Moscow Selects were dumped, this time 2-1, for the second time in as many days.

The Selects, a young club averaging less than 22 years of age, may some day provide many of the players for Russia's national team but they are now no better than probably the third best club Russia can assemble and the Canadians will have to be better than they were last night if they are to prevail at next spring's world tournament.

NOT AS IMPRESSIVE

Although clearly the better club except for the first part of the third period, the Nationals didn't impress as they did here a year ago when they walloped the No. 1 Russian club, 6-1.

They made too many mistakes on defence, although Carl Brewer was a shining light, their power play was mostly ineffectual although it did produce two goals and they failed to take full advantage of their scoring opportunities.

SOME FLASHES

However, there was enough there in flashes to retain the thought that this club can do it next spring.

Brewer, playing only his second game after being out of hockey for more than a season, set up his club's first goal, scored the fourth and it was noticeable that the Nationals were at their best when he was on the ice. When he is in top condition his addition to the club is going to make an even bigger difference.

TWO MISSING

And it will make another difference when centre Roger Bourbonnais and defenceman Gary Begg return to action. Bourbonnais was away last night writing exams and Begg is on the injured list.

Cosch Jackie McLeod also hopes to have an experienced rightwinger for the world tournament in Addis Ababa when the Trail Smoke Eaters.

Last night, the Nationals had the flashy Fran Huck, looking better than ever, Marshall Johnston and Jean Cusson, skating with anyone on the ice, joining Brewer in standout performances.

The Selects, young and strong, and willing to body but not knowing how to do it effectively, scored within 10 seconds when a flip shot by Georgi Chichurin evaded Wayne Stephenson.

Then they got a chance to add to their lead when Barry MacKenzie and Terry O'Malley drew penalties 22 seconds apart. But Brewer and Paul Conlin, with alternating help from Johnston and Huck, held out although Chichurin missed a second goal when his hard shot hit the piping.

NATS SHORTHANDED

With the penalties killed off, the Nationals went on the attack and the Selects drew penalties 23 seconds apart under pressure. Johnston squared matters, knocking the puck down with his glove in front of Vladimir Chynov and stashing it in a huge opening.

Bill MacMillan put the Nationals ahead to stay early in the second period by cashing the rebound after a shot from the left side and Huck scored the first of his two goals just over two minutes later with the Selects playing shorthanded.

Then Brewer planted a sizzling slap shot behind Chynov for a 4-1 lead for the third period.

It looked for a while in the third period as if it might not be enough.

The Selects came with their best effort of the evening and Anatoli Motovilov finished off two minutes of pressure with a first-trier that left Stephenson with no chance.

But the surge ended there. Huck put it out of reach at 11:55, and both clubs seemed to tire in the last 10 minutes.

Brewer Impresses Russians

Nats Rough Play Rapped

A square-jawed, powerfully-built Russian ice hockey coach took a swing Monday at Canadian national team, accusing them of "unnecessary rough play."

The rockets came at a press conference where the Russians presented their views on hockey frankly and with occasional flashes of humor.

Cosch Anatoly Kostrov began by discussing the national's new recruit, defenceman Carl Brewer.

"In my opinion, Brewer is a magnificent hockey player of high class," Kostrov said. "He played very good; very good body checking but not too rough."

Brewer wasn't penalized in Sunday's game and said afterwards: "I'm not a dirty player, just very much misunderstood at times."

From Brewer, Kostrov moved onto another National Hockey League veteran, Jack Bowness.

"It is my opinion that this (national) team is stronger than last year's."

The answer for this was the presence of Brewer and Bowness.

"They give a very reliable strength, a backbone to the team. The rest of the team knows the defence is in sure hands. This team is stronger than before."

And then the conversation moved toward rough play.

"The Canadians could do away with rough play," Kostrov said. "They could have played much better (Sunday) if they did away with unnecessary rough play."

An attending newsman told the Russians there was a feeling among the Canadian players after Sunday's game that the Russians were rough in the first period.

The remark was translated and the Russians smiled broadly.

"The situation was the reverse," was the reply.

NOT DISGUISED

The Canadians erred in their stick-handling, the coach said, and they slashed. The Russian players do not do this.

"Some Canadians frankly tried to push Russian players without trying to disguise it," he said. "They should have at least tried to disguise it."

He cited an example of how a Canadian player struck a Russian in the face Sunday with his hand.

Kostrov was asked why the Russians got called for more penalties Sunday than the Canadians didn't play rough and the Canadians didn't disguise their roughness.

He replied with the suggestion that all visiting coaches and managers made at some time: "The organizers should have invited a neutral referee."

"The Canadians are always the rougher in all major tournaments," Kostrov said. "We are not against good body checking, we are against dirty play on the field (sic)."

Coach Kostrov saw a game of professional hockey in Canada in 1960.

FIRST TEAM BETTER

The conversation returned to quieter subjects. The Selects is basically a team combining experience with youth. The Russian first national team is much better than the Selects.

Perhaps three of the Selects would be good enough to make the Russian No. 1 team for the world championships in Vienna.

Coach Kostrov was asked for his opinion on Canada's chances at the championships.

"Canada has a good chance with Brewer and Bowness."

How would the Canadians fare against Russia's first team?

More broad smiles and joking in Russian.

"That is a very good question they would be about equal."

A pleasant press-conference closed.

Back in the Western Hockey League playoff picture despite having Bill Shvetz and Bob Barlow join Fred Hucal and Larry Keenan on the list of incapacitated, and Sandy Hucal, Aut Erickson and Claude Labrosse nursing various ailments, the Leafs hope to have Barlow and Shvetz ready for tonight's game.

Victory tonight will mean at least a tie for fourth place and it could create a four-way tie for third place if San Diego falls co-operate by outscoring Seattle Totems in tonight's other game.

FINISH WEDNESDAY

The Leafs conclude their second five-game trip in Portland on Wednesday night and return home for a game against Vancouver Canucks on Christmas Eve.

On Sunday, the Totems produced two third-period goals to edge Vancouver Canucks, 2-1, and Oakland Seals ended a winless six-game tour of the Northern part of the league by gaining a 3-2 tie with the leading Portland Buckaroos.

A 40-foot shot by defenceman Jean Gauthier broke a 1-1 tie late in the game in Seattle. Tom Thurlby earned the point for the Seals when he scored 59 seconds from time with his club using six attackers.

Suspension Brings Team Resignation

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—

The entire squad of Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League walked out Monday on owner Eddie Shore.

The 23 players took the action in protest of suspensions handed three defencemen Sunday by Shore.

Shore issued a statement saying he refused "to be dictated to by the group" and that the players had "automatically broken" their contracts with their refusal to practice."

He said he was not worried about whether the team would return to practice today.

"It's up to them. I'll bring in enough players to man two more clubs if I need to in order to meet our schedule requirements."

Suspended were Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio, considered to be the club's top defencemen. They were suspended for what Shore called "indifferent play."

Shore's action followed Springfield's fourth straight loss—5-4 to Quebec Saturday in a game decided late in the third period.

He said he was not worried about whether the team would return to practice today.

Royal Welcome Extended To McLeod and Charges

Carl Brewer could have been born in Victoria (he wasn't) by the way the Memorial Arena fans opened their lungs Monday night to the former Toronto Maple Leafs star.

Polite applause greeted each of the Russians and the Canadians until the announcer got to Fran Huck. Now, the Victoria fans remembered Huck from last year.

They gave him a loud welcome.

Last player to be introduced was No. 17, Carl Brewer. That's when the yelling started.

ROAR INCREASED

It rose even higher late in the second period when Brewer blasted a shot past the amazed Russian goaltender.

The night wasn't a total loss for the Moscow Selects. Forward Georgi Chichurin lost his helmet in a first-period check on the boards.

An appeal was made to the crowd and the helmet was, surprisingly, returned.

SOVIETS BITTER

Jacky McLeod, coach and manager of the Canadian National team, said the Russians played better Monday night than they did in Vancouver Sunday.

He was pleased with the way his team killed penalties and thought Marshall Johnston, Morris Mott and Huck were standouts for the Nationals.

He disagreed with a suggestion from the Russian camp that the Canadians were too rough in their play, an impression gained from the Vancouver game.

"I don't think it was us who started it (Sunday)," he said. "They got a bit flustered."

The Nationals were without centre Roger Bourbonnais who flew to Winnipeg Monday morning to write a law examination.

Russian coach Anatoly Kostrov said Moscow's young forwards weren't aggressive. "The Canadian players use enough," he said. "Experience comes with time."

The Russians play Wednesday in Edmonton against the senior amateur Nuggets. They will meet the Nationals once more, in Winnipeg Dec. 25.

Anthem for Birthday Year-End Highlight

OTTAWA (CP) — Year-end celebrations on Parliament Hill Dec. 31 will be climaxed by the first public performance of the official anthem for Canada's centennial celebrations.

The anthem, commissioned by the Canadian Interfaith Council, will be sung to the accompaniment of the Peach Tower carillon.

The council, a gathering of 32 religious groups sponsored by the national centennial commission, chose Dr. Healy Willan to write the music.

Robert Choquette wrote the French words and John Glasco of Foster, Que., the English words.

Dr. Willan, 86, is Canada's most noted composer and has written more than 200 works. Mr. Choquette is an author of radio and TV plays and Canada's consul-general at Bordeaux, France.

The lighting of the Fires of Friendship flame — announcing the start of a year of celebration of Canada's 100th birthday — will be coincidental with the singing of the anthem.

Following is the full text of the anthem:

"Glory to Thee, Creator! Praise and adoration For this dear land so favored by Thy loving-kindness!

See, all her hills, her lakes, her plains and river-ways, See, all her mighty forests filled with Thy creation.

See, all the endless treasures hidden in her bosom! Receive, O Lord, our song of praise.

Bach Oratoria Triumph For Orchestra, Singers

By WILLIAM THOMAS

The Victoria Symphony Society's offering of the Bach Christmas Oratorio was a minor triumph Monday.

Everything worked perfectly and with a minor reservation or two about the sound system set aside, this must rank as the best concert of the season.

There seems to be an infectious enthusiasm for Bach in this city.

Otto-Werner Mueller had the Victoria Choral Society firmly in control and there can be no doubt that Rodney Webster has done a magnificent job in training this ensemble.

GREAT STRENGTH
There was great strength in the orchestra and also in the accompanists. Robin Wood was flawless on the harpsichord, while Richard Proudman provided a fine organ background.

The soloists got a most sensitive support from cellist Hans Siegrist, who provided continuous throughout all the parts. His contribution certainly did not go unnoticed.

It's always a delight to be able to praise a local artist, and bantone Stanley Martin offers an opportunity now.

He has a warm feeling for oratorio and not only sings well but seems to communicate the spirit of the music.

Tenor Robert Peters offered a precise interpretation of the Evangelist but it did not carry quite the empathy that Mr. Martin produced.

Audrey Glass was hampered a trifle by the sound system but carried her role with sensitivity. Derek MacDermot was also hampered with the microphone placement problem, but he produced a satisfying sound, especially in his duet with Sheila Marks.

The Bach music is demanding and it was well played. Trumpeter David Fisher deserves special mention. After a few minor difficulties in the first section he settled down to play magnificently. The same is true of flutist Jan Menting.

PERFECT SOLO
His solo in the second movement with Robert Peters was perfect.

The chorus sang with a vigor and enthusiasm that I have not heard since Albert Hall days.

To open the second movement the symphony played the Bach Pastoral Symphony. This offering proves again that we have a first-class chamber orchestra.

The only thing the Monday concert at the Royal Theatre lacked was an audience. There were fewer than 700 people at the concert by my rough count.

Strike on Two Dailies Threatens P.E.I. Capital

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — This capital city of Prince Edward Island may be without its daily newspapers after Saturday, Dec. 24, if the Charlottetown Typographical Union (Ind.), Local 963 calls a threatened strike against the morning Guardian and evening Patriot. M. Allison Croken, union president, said Monday a strike can be called legally anytime after Saturday midnight although no time has been set yet.

War on the Critics Cool in London Hot in New York

From AP, UPI

The war on theatre critics is warming up in New York but has cooled down — a bit — in London.

These items have spiced the Broadway season:

● Producer David Merrick has banned two TV-radio commentators and two press critics.

● Various critics have found themselves barred from premises in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington on grounds of being incompetent, dull, late or maybe all three.

● Leading producers and playwrights in augmented force have been sounding off about the breed as "pansy" or "werpe" or "threats to culture."

● Some critics have taken to bluntly criticizing colleagues, and a TV man snarled at the New York Drama Critics Circle for not admitting broadcast reviewers.

● Most significant and potentially important, both the U.S. government's National Endowment for the Arts and the privately-financed Twentieth Century Fund have launched studies of critical standards in drama and all the other arts.

In London, the war between theatre critics and the writers and directors of plays boiled up anew when critics roasted A. R. Gurney, a tough, complex one-act drama by John Osborne.

THEM AND US
In a reply worthy of his angry young man in look Back in Anger, Osborne divided the theatrical world into Them and Us.

"By them," he elaborated unnecessarily, "I mean the acknowledged enemy, the critics."

Yes, Nanaimo, There Is a Santa Claus

By ARNOLD OLSON
NANAIMO — Any child will tell you that there is a Santa Claus, and almost any adult will say he doesn't believe in the grand old gent.

We tell children a fable that Santa lives at the north pole, but for many kids, he lives in Nanaimo.

During the year he hides his identity in the role of mild-mannered Percy Cassell, a longshoreman.

But at Christmas, he slips into whatever hiding place is available, and pulls on his red-and-white costume, pillows and makeup to become Santa Claus.

Racing through the streets, he brings giggles and smiles, and twinkles to eyes.

He passes out presents at parties, and bounces the youngest on his knees.

"Sunday, he did this at three parties: Sons of Norway, Teamsters' Union, and a Sunday school party.

When Christmas Eve comes, he has over 40 houses that he will visit, seeing countless children.

It took a long time, but he finally trained parents to visit each other that night, so he might see more children in his travels.

Asked if he charges for his visits, he answered, "If I did, it would be more than you could afford."

It began 20 years ago, when he was just an ordinary mortal.

Someone dared him to do it, and he did. He's been doing it ever since.

Why is he no longer classed as a mortal? Children believe in him.

Years from now, ageing adults will remember the jolly red-faced man, who jingled and chimed with every move and maybe kissed their cheek.

Santa lives wherever there is a man like Percy.

Bleak Christmas for 1,000 Laid Off by Flood

Searchers Find Boat, No Sign of Two Men

TOFINO — Children of Chief Edward Jack of the Nootka band at Friendly Cove, will have a sad Christmas.

Their father is missing and presumed drowned... a victim of week-end storms. Chief Jack, elected head of the band, was travelling with Able Little, 34.

They were in a 14-foot speedboat, which searchers found on the rocks off the west coast of the island.

New Freight Rate Hit by Albernis

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — A proposed freight rate increase for Island residents has united political foes in a desperate attempt to win more time from the Public Utilities Commission.

Social Credit MLA Dr. Howard MacDiarmid said he will telephone and write to the PUC immediately, asking an extension of the deadline for submissions on the 10 per cent rate hike.

NDP president John Squire said the government should make sure enough figures are made public so "the public knows the exact cost of trucking goods to the Island."

The Alberni and District Labor Council has a letter in the mail to the PUC saying the time limit on submissions is inadequate.

The Chamber of Commerce will take the matter up at today's meeting.

At present freight rates to Vancouver are $2.25 a hundred weight from the Alberni Valley for one hundred and fifty pounds or less, with a sliding rate scale for bigger shipments. Truckers blame the difficult terrain, the rough and gravelled surface, with snowdrifts and washouts in winter and potholes in summer, causing excessive wear on equipment.

Dr. MacDiarmid termed rates to the west coast of the Island "ghastly". He said he would act immediately to try and get an extension granted.

It was announced Monday that a request for the 10 per cent boost would be made to the Public Utilities Commission Dec. 22, and that the closing date for submissions by any opposing the new rate would be Jan. 6.

Chamber of Commerce groups protested this left only six working days in which to research the subject and prepare briefs if opposition appears justified.

"At the holiday season, six working days is about two normal working days," Dr. MacDiarmid exclaimed.

"I know everyone in Tofino and Ucluelet will certainly want to look into the situation, and those in the Alberni will also undoubtedly be seriously concerned."

Mr. Squire said, "Island residents shouldn't be subsidizing bridge construction on the main-land Trans-Canada Highway, and left holding the bag for heavy fares for freight and passengers via the ferries."

"I consider it ludicrous for Premier Bennett and other provincial officials to complain bitterly to Ottawa of the injustice of inequality of freight rates across Canada, when no consideration is given to the inequality of their own ferry system."

Labor council secretary Maurice Corbett stated "It is our opinion that such things as the profit picture of the trucking firms should be thoroughly investigated prior to granting any increase."

"If, after investigating conditions, there is evidence that these trucking firms are entitled to increased revenues, then it is our opinion that these costs should not be passed on to the residents of Vancouver Island in the form of increased freight costs."

"They should be subsidized by governments in the form of a reduction, or if possible a complete elimination of ferry costs."

HIGHWAY LINK

"We have been told by our government officials on many occasions that the ferry system between Vancouver and Vancouver Island is a part of the Trans-Canada Highway system."

"We see no reason why residents of Vancouver Island should pay tolls to travel on part of the Trans-Canada Highway system."

Mr. Squire said, "each band should be allowed to choose its own method."

He said under the proposed amendment concerning the adoption of children, the child would become fully accepted by

Cowichan Catches Glimpse Of Murky Silver Lining

By KLAUS MUENTER
DUNCAN — The rain stopped, and clear skies brought some hope to residents who have been threatened with floods for the past week. Torrential downpours during the last eight days raised the level of Cowichan Lake and North Cowichan, but a municipal official said the situation is improving.

He said "despite the high tide Monday the water is beginning to drop."

In the Cowichan Lake district hundreds of woodworkers were laid off Monday morning when sawmill operations ceased because of floodwaters from the Cowichan Lake.

Some of the Indian families from the Mission Road district of the Cowichan Indian reserve are still unable to return to the homes they had to leave a few days ago when a dyke on the south bank of the Cowichan River gave away.

Emergency pumps were still drawing water from a flooded section on Beverley Street in

Indians Want More Control

DUNCAN — Canadian Indians are striding toward the day when they will completely make their own community rules.

George Manuel, community development officer in this area, recently attended a meeting of Indian bands from across the country.

Mr. Manuel, a Shuswap Indian from Chase, is president of the National Indian Advisory Council.

He said the Winnipeg meeting drew up 87 amendments to proposed deletions from the Indian act.

The meeting will ask parliament to make the changes.

Mr. Manuel said proposed changes include the method of elections within Indian bands, adoption practices and farming development.

He said four methods of elections were proposed:

● A single slate of councillors be elected with the one receiving the greatest number of votes being elected chief.

● A staggered plan of office for councillors be instituted to provide for elections of half the officers in alternate years.

● The existing method remains for those who do not wish a change, provided it is consistent with the amendments.

● The hereditary system be recognized by the act for those bands who wish to operate under this system.

Mr. Manuel said "each band should be allowed to choose its own method."

He said under the proposed amendment concerning the adoption of children, the child would become fully accepted by

Drivers Caught

DUNCAN — The RCMP has started its annual motorist crackdown.

During a three-hour road block at Duncan, 500 cars were checked and five drivers were charged with driving infraction.

A total of 34 other motorists were issued with notices because their cars were found to be defective.

Cpl. Colin Smith of the Duncan highway patrol said road blocks will be carried out into the new year.

Nine Charged After Deaths

NANAIMO — Charges arising from the Nov. 4 deaths of Bruce William Cox, 17, and Douglas Jenkins, 16, of Gabriola, were heard in court Monday.

Four juvenile girls, two 15 and the others 16 and 17 were remanded until Jan. 9 for pre-sentence reports.

They pleaded guilty to charges of being minors in possession of liquor.

Lawrence Smith, 28, was also remanded until Jan. 9 on charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency, and obstructing a police officer.

He had been accused of supplying beer to one of the girls.

He claimed that he was the first person at the scene of the accident and that Cox and Jenkins were the only two in the car.

Police claimed one of the passengers had told him of the accident.

Noel Valcourt, Arthur Wayne Stewart, 19, Kenneth Lawrence Lepoidevin, 20, and Dennis Gordon Burt, 18, were fined $50 for being minors in possession of liquor.

A party on Gabriola Island ended in the two deaths, when Cox and Jenkins left the party to get more beer.

At the coroner's inquest, several of the juveniles had testified that drinking parties were as frequent as once a week.

Record Rain Hits Albernis

PORT ALBERNI — Mc Coy Lake weatherman Colin Wilson has measured 10.16 inches of rain in the past week.

Since Dec. 1, 18.59 inches has fallen on the Albernis, compared to an average rainfall for the entire month of 13.96.

Yearly average here is 78.60 inches, but already 83.42 inches have come down.

Although the surrounding mountains emerged from a cloudbank briefly Monday at ternoon, the forecast is for still more moisture.

Looking through his records, Mr. Wilson discovered that since Jan. 1, 1900, 94.772 inches in 1961 set a record to date. But with only 13 inches required for 1966 to match that maximum, some new records appear likely before the old year passes.

OLD SONG

It goes, "I'm Dreaming of a Wet Christmas..."

Birthday Park Gets a Bath

COURTENAY — Prolonged rainfall in the Comox Valley has brought flooding of basements and park areas adjacent to the river.

B.C. Hydro, B.C. Telephone both said they had been very fortunate.

The telephone company had some minor cable trouble and Hydro officials said their main concern now was that the wind does not change direction, and that snow does not follow the rain.

In Courtenay the new Centennial Park is under several inches of water from the flooding Puntledge River and young shrubs planted this year were removed from the park before they were carried away by the water.

The road between Courtenay and Cumberland in one low area was flooded, and signs and red lanterns were placed in position to warn motorists.

The rainfall for December so far reached 9.86 inches compared to the average for the whole month of 7.02 inches.

Teen-Ager Threw, Tampered, But Not Guilty

DUNCAN — A charge of assaulting a peace officer by throwing eggs was dismissed by Magistrate George Hallett Monday.

Magistrate Hallett said the Crown had not proven the accused 18-year-old Steven Timothy Jang had thrown an egg at RCMP Constable Richard Yaskiw.

Crown counsel Jack Davis said he would appeal the decision.

Const. Yaskiw said he saw the accused lift his hand above the crowd and throw an egg.

The egg landed about a foot in front of him and splattered on the top of his boot, he said.

The incident was followed by a chase through the crowd, and the subsequent arrest of Jang.

A witness for the prosecution said he saw the accused throwing eggs at police officers but did not observe which one.

Twenty-year-old Wayne Harbord-Harbord asked for the protection of the Canada Evidence Act before taking the stand as a witness for the defence.

He told the court: "There was all kinds of guys hanging out eggs," said Harbord-Harbord.

"There was a truck right there selling eggs by the hundreds for 10 cents a dozen.

"Lots of people were smashing eggs for a joke.

"When squad cars went down the main street of town, pretty well 75 per cent threw eggs."

Jang told the court he had thrown three dozen eggs at policemen Halloween night, and he had hit three of the officers.

"Some of the guys would say 'I'm and we would throw eggs,'" said Jang.

Defence counsel Alastair MacDonald asked "Did the egg or any part of it leave your hand?"

The accused answered "No, I don't think so."

In cross-examination the Crown asked "Have you ever had second thoughts about the wisdom of your actions that night?"

"I know I won't do it again," said the accused.

"Sure it's fun throwing eggs but if I used my head I would not have done it now."

Summing up his case Mr.

MacDonald said, "That the accused was extremely foolish and broke the law that night is not the question."

He said if Jang had been charged with conspiracy to commit assault or had been charged with unlawful assembly, the accused would have been guilty.

He stated the Crown had not proven the accused assaulted Constable Yaskiw as two witnesses said they saw the egg break in Jang's hand before he could throw it.

Santa Cruise Among Islands

Few Waved Goodbye

By WAYNE THOMAS

The 1966 Jaycee Santa ship which sailed among the Gulf Islands and San Juan at the weekend left one of its 10 ports of call without a chance to say goodbye.

About 40 Indian children, teenagers and a couple of adults at the Shell Beach settlement drifted off soon after they had been given their presents by Santa Claus.

When the last hostess of Jaycees pulled away from the beach for the Santa ship Blue Fjord, anchored in the bay, only two mongrel dogs stood on the bleak, log-strewn beach.

Some Jaycees hadn't noticed. "Boy, I got a kick out of handing out presents there," said 1966 Santa ship chairman Don Ritsen.

But whatever happened, it's Christmas, something which the 15 Jaycees never forgot during the two-day cruise.

They generated Christmas spirit among hundreds of children and adults who streamed down in cars and trucks and foot to their particular landing, beach or jetty to see THE ship of the year.

No one cared about the rain or the chill winds which blew in from the north and swirled around the hundreds of fir-covered islands, shrouded almost completely in rain cloud.

And from the 65-foot Blue Fjord, red-jacketed Jaycees carried bags and baskets of toys and candy of all descriptions.

There were toys of all imaginable kinds, cuddly animals bigger than some of the children who received them, little toys, sets of games, dolls, books, bags of candy, bags of peanuts and fruit.

Young children had never seen so many presents. Older children were wide-eyed with anticipation and adults in the more remote islands compared the array to a supermarket.

To others, the ship was even more fascinating than Santa, the clowns or the presents.

The 60-ton former RCMP boat, owned and shipped by 30-year-old Victoria ex-Jaycee, Kaare J. Norgaard, was fully decorated with Christmas lights, reindeer, a sleigh, and a Christmas tree, with recorded carols playing through loudspeakers.

The project, which still cost $500 after most of the toys and the boat had been donated, is described by Victoria Jaycee president Grant Johnstone as the district's most ambitious.

The cruise was the fourth made by the Victoria Jaycee Santa ship, which rendezvoused Saturday with the Jaycee Christmas ship from Bellingham.

There were 38 people aboard the American ship, the 68-foot Brookfield, and it visited 12 different towns in the Gulf and San Juan Islands for the 16th time.

Students Work As Carpenters

CAMPBELL RIVER — High school students are going into the construction business, without opposition from the carpenters' union.

School board has authorized the expenditure of $2,000 for materials for vocational students to use in their class.

The students have designed a 24-square foot building, and they are preparing to build it.

When completed, the portable field house may be used for an announcer's booth, concession stand and change room for student sport events.

It should then be worth $4,000, according to principal John Young. He hopes the class next year will build a complete dwelling.

Nanaimo has conducted a similar project for years.

way when he was seen taking a history.

He was apprehended outside the store.

TOFINO — Fred Pedersen of Port Alberni has been elected president of Clayoquot Sound Branch of Canadian Legion.

Other officers include Ross Regan, vice-president; Rev. John Wright Leighton, Chaplain; Roy Evans, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Richards, sergeant-at-arms; Hugo Pedersen, chairman of house committee.

Retiring president was A. F. Brayden.

CHEMAINUS — MacMillan Bloedel Limited has presented Lady Smith Ambulance Society with a cheque for $1,000 toward purchase of a new ambulance.

Mrs. Ray Knight, president of the society, accepted the cheque from W. J. Loukes, manager of Chemainus logging division.

The plateau has been chosen as the site for this event by this year's host, Ullr Ski Club of Alberni. Two weekends of excellent skiing competition are now assured for the winter carnival as this event joins the Feb. 11, 12 carnival trophy races.

Lief Garthus of the Alberni club has set the following events for the island championships:

Feb. 18, slalom—men, slalom—ladies, slalom—junior boys' slalom—junior girls;

Feb. 19, Downhill—men, downhill—ladies, downhill—junior boys, downhill—junior girls.

Shipped from Switzerland and scheduled to arrive in Courtenay on Nov. 21, the bull wheel for the new T-bar will arrive one month late.

It was in the port of Vancouver on schedule but could not be unloaded due to the dock strike.

It journeyed south to Portland, then to San Francisco where it was finally unloaded in bound for movement back up the west coast to Vancouver.

It is expected to arrive in Courtenay Wednesday, and be installed immediately.

DUNCAN — A resident of the Lake Cowichan district for 25 years, George Vincent Sanders has died in King's Daughters' Hospital.

Born at Geldrop, North Brabant, Netherlands, in 1902, he came to Canada 40 years ago.

He was granted his Canadian citizenship in 1947.

He was a former lumber grader for Western Forest Industries, Hildercrest, and a member of St. Louis Men's Club.

Regular mass will be held at St. Edward's Catholic Church, Duncan, Wednesday.

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo man will have a dry Christmas this year.

Arthur Edwards, 66, of 233 Third Street, pleaded guilty to intoxication in a public place, and to theft under $50.

He was fined $25 for the first offence and $50 for the second.

He is not allowed to drink liquor for a year.

● Higher pension tax application to top third of incomes, 2,500,000 taxpayers out of 8,500,000.

● Building materials and production machinery exempt from sales tax increase.

● Higher pension tax maximum to yield $135,000,000 in full year; sales tax increase $135,000,000, providing revenue needed for supplementary old age pensions and lowering of pension age.

● Sales tax increase to cause higher prices but resulting increase in cost of living expected to be under one per cent.

● Rates of old age pension tax unchanged at four per cent of taxable personal income, three per cent of taxable corporation income and three per cent sales tax.

● Economic outlook for 1967 still uncertain but government prepared for quick action to halt either decline or renewed inflationary push.

Homosexual Legality Approved

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons approved Monday night a bill legalizing homosexual acts between consenting male adults in private.

The action capped a long campaign by those who say the existing law makes practicing homosexuals vulnerable to blackmail.

Leo Abe, Labor party member who sponsored the bill, said the law now offers homosexuals a choice of celibacy or criminality.

The bill now goes for debate in the House of Lords before becoming law. The Lords are already expected to pass it.

OTTAWA (Special)—The government has set in motion a massive overhaul of securities legislation and opened the possibility of compensation for people ruined in the Prudential Finance collapse.

In the Commons Monday, events moved rapidly:

● Prime Minister Pearson said legislation is being drafted, requiring the co-operation of the provinces, to establish a national securities commission.

● Finance Minister Sharp said he hopes for a federal-provincial conference to look into

Opposition Leaps On 'Leak'

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Sharp's political career today hangs on the truth or falsity of hints of a budget "leak."

Conservative leader John Diefenbaker said Monday there must have been a leak and it had to be "looked into."

Mr. Sharp denied there was any substance to suggestions that he gave Jack Van Loven, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, or anybody else any hint of what was in the budget.

PREDICTION

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson said Mr. Pearson had an assurance from Mr. Sharp neither he nor Mr. Van Loven knew of any leak.

According to a news report from Vancouver Mr. Van Loven predicted, before Mr. Sharp started his mini-budget speech, that there would be a one per cent increase in the sales tax and the income tax.

In fact, there was a one per cent increase in the sales tax, and the old age security tax was also increased.

"COINCIDENCE"

A spokesman for Mr. Van Loven said Monday it was an "unfortunate coincidence" that he was 50 per cent correct.

According to the news reports, Mr. Van Loven was at a reception given by the Vancouver financial community last Wednesday.

Mr. Sharp was a guest, speaking mainly about the Mercantile Bank issue to between 50 and 75 people.

At a press conference, after he had delivered his mini-budget, Mr. Sharp said the report of a "leak" was "completely false."

PENSION TAX JUMPS SALES LEVY UP, TOO

OTTAWA (CP)—The upper third of income taxpayers will pay up to $120 a year more and the federal sales tax will jump to 12 per cent from 11 to provide $290,000,000 for increased pension benefits. Finance Minister Sharp announced Monday in what amounts to a Santa-Scooge budget.

Both steps take effect Jan. 1, 1967. The additional taxes are being imposed to pay for the new guaranteed income plan which will provide $30 a month to old age pensioners who need it to supplement the $75 monthly now paid at age 69. Starting Jan. 1, the qualifying age drops to 68, adding 100,000 to the pension rolls.

The income guarantee plan is expected to increase old age security cost by $280,000,000 a year, $10,000,000 less than the projected yield of the two tax increases, Mr. Sharp said. The measures are designed to meet cost of the supplement and to leave "a small margin."

MEET PENSIONS

Mr. Sharp said the two tax increases are all he now is imposing. Both are to meet the pensions bill. The economy generally was in a delicate balance. It does not call for a more fundamental change in the basic tax structure.

The finance minister made no change in basic income tax exemptions, corporation taxes, the special tobacco and alcohol levies or import duties.

The higher tax takes the form of increasing to $240 a year the present $120-a-year maximum on the amounts taxpayers pay in the current four-per-cent old age security tax on incomes.

The increase affects all those who have taxable incomes of $3,000 or more, after all deductions and allowances now permitted by law.

LOW INCOME BENEFIT

This means, says the finance department, there will be no tax increase for single persons with incomes of $4,100 or less, married persons earning $5,100 or less or a married man with one child earning $5,400 or less.

Married taxpayers with two dependent children qualified for family allowances will start to feel the pinch of the new tax at $3,700. Married taxpayers with four children qualified for family allowances will be hit at the $5,300 bracket.

WATCH TO GUARD

In the case of the increase in sales taxes, Mr. Sharp said the revenue department will watch to guard against charging the tax before Jan. 1.

Because foodstuffs, services and some other items such as fuel now are exempt from the sales tax, the one-percentage-point increase should mean less than a one-per-cent increase in living costs, Mr. Sharp said.

He also said that building materials and production machinery

Four Die, Many Flee Fiery Gasoline Flood

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Flaming gasoline pouring down a storm sewer after a massive four-death traffic crash Monday sent residents fleeing from their homes in a five-mile strip across northern Indianapolis. Eight schools were evacuated.

Civil defence authorities sounded the "all clear" shortly after noon but warned all returning householders to flush toilets to wash away any remaining gas fumes.

Indiana state fairgrounds buildings were being opened as an evacuation centre when the danger subsided, five hours after a fuel tank truck jackknifed on one of the city's busiest streets.

The tanker explosion and fire engulfed six vehicles. The driver was severely burned.

The semi-trailer truck jackknifed and two cars crashed into the truck which instantly exploded in a gush of flames, said eyewitness Ralph Smith, 19.

The billowing fire roared over the truck and five cars, burning so intensely that first fire companies at the scene were driven back and had to call for help.

SKIPPER CAST TWO AWAY

PIRAEUS, Greece (Reuters)—The captain of a West German freighter was convicted Monday of abandoning two slowaways—one of whom has never been found—on a raft in the Mediterranean.

Capt. Bernhard Stuve, 42, who said he had left the men at their own request, was sentenced to a year, but was freed after paying $1,500 in lieu of nine months in jail. He already has served three months since his arrest.

He was convicted of leaving unassisted people at sea and facilitating the entry of slowaways into Greece.

Halli Daffe, 31, of Turkey, managed to reach Crete and accused the captain of putting him on the raft. A search failed to find the other slowaway, Agil Elgum, 18, of Lebanon.

Big Two Talk Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. is understood to be urging Russia to limit further deployment of anti-ballistic missiles to avoid a costly new spiral in the arms race that would not improve the strategic position of either country.

Administration sources said Monday the U.S. would not make a final decision on whether to start deployment of its own ABM system until January or February.

These sources said international discussions have begun on the perils posed by the Soviet entry into this field.

The Johnson administration had hoped to avoid involvement in another arms race with Russia.

But Defence Secretary McNamara disclosed Nov. 10 anti-missile missiles were going into position around Moscow and Leningrad. Congressional pressure for Nike-Xs around New York and Washington appeared immediately.

Thursday Last Chance to Help 500

The Colonist 500 Fund will close Thursday, Dec. 22, at 5 p.m.

This will enable Colonist staffers to divide receipts of the fund equally into 500 cheques to be sent before Christmas to the 500 families selected neediest in the Greater Victoria area by welfare agencies.

Here are examples of the kind of families the fund is aimed at helping to a little brighter Christmas:

Two of the area's Bettys have numerous things in common.

Each has an alcoholic husband who has left her with their four children.

Each is flat broke.

Betty No. 1, who lives in Sooke, brought up her four children "as best she could" on social assistance. But when her eldest child, a 17-year-old son, got himself what was considered an adequate job, her social assistance was cut off.

"There are still three children (ages 10, 12 and 14) in the house, but now Rod wants to go out and get married—and save his own money," Betty No. 1 complains.

Her house is a miserable little shack. All three younger children are in school. Among her "modern" conveniences are her water-pump faucet and kerosene lamps.

Betty No. 2 is a little different.

A Victoria woman, she does have a little money. At least she will have when the people for whom she has cleaned suites can find enough to pay her for her work.

Betty No. 2's children are 6, 4, 3, and 1½. She had to pay somebody to look after them when she got her month-long cleaning job, and she had to buy supplies with which to clean.

She finished her cleaning job a month ago and received the reassuring news that her employers would pay her as soon as the Christmas season is over.

"You know how it is at Christmas," her employers said. "So little money and yet so much to buy."

Yes, Betty No. 2 already knew that. She could have spent the entire day talking about nothing but that.

It's families like those of the Bettys that the Colonist 500 Fund is aimed at helping.

Cheques from the fund help to pay rent, heat, light, water, medicine, clothing and food bills.

During the weekend $1,017.74 was added to the fund, bringing the total to $11,571.23. But with the fund's closing date set for this Thursday, the fund has considerable distance to cover yet to match last year's record $15,000 collection.

Good-hearted area citizens can make donations to the fund by either mailing or dropping off their contributions at The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or Avis Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas.
